Hunger Adds to Distress in City Still Paralyzed and Helpless From Terrific Storm

STREETS BLOCKADED BY SNOW AND WIRES

Cleveland, O., Nov. 11.—(By Private Wire to Pittsburg, Pa.)—Cleveland is buried under twenty-one inches of snow, its streets are filled with a tangled mass of broken and twisted wires and thousands upon thousands of its inhabitants are in imminent danger of suffering for lack of food.

Three persons have been killed, ten are missing and are believed to have been frozen to death and a great steamship is stranded on the beach, its captain and twenty-two sailors waiting for the death that may come at any moment because of the mountainous seas rolling in from Lake Erie.

Loss Already $2,000,000.

It is still snowing, and unless the storm which has continued since last Sunday soon abates no one can tell what the ultimate toll in dollars and lives may be. The loss is already estimated at $2,000,000, half of which will fall upon the telephone and telegraph companies.

Normal conditions cannot be restored within a week, and if a thaw should come, followed by the inevitable flood, the whole lake country will suffer severely.

Conditions have been growing worse since Monday night when half of the city was plunged into darkness, the lighting plant being blown down by the gale. This morning at least one-half of the street car service was out of commission, and no less than 3,000 trolley, telegraph and telephone poles within the city demolished.

Hold No Funerals.

So complete was the paralysis of transportation facilities it was deemed best to let the dead lie in the places where they had died, and no funerals will be held until the storm has abated.

There has been no delivery of groceries, bread, milk or coal since Saturday and the suffering in consequence cannot be definitely learned, but it is widespread. There is a sufficient supply of gas, and it is being used unsparingly in places fitted for it that as many persons as possible may be benefited.

Fear Is From Fire.

One of the greatest fears is from fire. Already one fire has done $100,000 damage, and the difficulties encountered in

DAVIS RELATES TALE TO JURORS

MANY SMALLER CASES

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 11.—With the story of George F. Davis, confessed dynamiter, who was arrested several weeks ago in New York city, before it, the federal grand jury for the Indiana district began its November session here today. Davis, in his confession, declared that he did most of the dynamiting in the labor war against non-union contractors in the eastern section of the country at the time Ortie E. McManigal and James McNamara were carrying on their work of destruction in the central and far west.

Davis implicated in the plot to dynamite non-union work several other men, including Henry Jones, secretary-treasurer of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers. Jones was arrested here on an affidavit from the United States district attorney's office and later was released on $10,000 bond. Davis is still in custody.

The grand jury also will investigate the case of the arrest of twelve men at Mooresville, Ind., during the interurban employes strike last August. The men were taken in custody by United States Marshall Edward Schmidt and his deputies on a charge of obstructing the mails by tearing down high tension wires and placing poles across the tracks of the Terre Haute, Indianapolis & Eastern Traction comany.

There are also many smaller cases to be investigated by the grand jury.

WRECKAGE IS DRIFTING IN

Tells Loss of Lightship and Crew of Six in Lake Erie Storm.

LOST FREIGHTER AS YET UNKNOWN

Overturned Craft in Lake Huron May Have Carried Many to Death.

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 11.—Light ship, No. 82, carrying a crew of six persons, stationed in Lake Erie, off Point Abino, fifteen miles west of this city, is reported lost by incoming vessel men and is believed to have foundered during the recent storm.

Wreckage of the light ship floated into Buffalo harbor this morning and was picked up on the beach at the foot of Michigan street. The flotsam consisted of a boat railing, two or three doors, apparently off a boat, and several life preservers, marked "United States, LS 82."

The ship carried a crew of six men. Hiram M. Wild was captain, Manistee, Mich.; Charles Butler, engineer, Buffalo; Cornelius Leahy, assistant engineer, Elyria, Ohio; Andrew Leahy, mate, Elyria, Ohio; William Jensen, seaman, Muskegon, Mich.; Peter Mackey, cook, Buffalo.

"The light ship was gone when we passed her anchorage this morning at 5:20 o'clock," said Captain Dupuis, master of the Champlain, after docking his steamer this morning. "Apparently she was driven from her anchorage in the gale and went to the bottom."

LAW COMMITTEE OVERTURNS PLAN

Holds National Committee Cannot Reorganize Republican Party.

NEEDS A CONVENTION

Washington, Nov. 11.—Plans for reorganization of the republican party were destroyed here today by the law committee of the republican national committee. Proposals for changing the number of delegates and representation basis in the national convention along lines put forward by the progressive faction of the party were taken up.

The discussions indicated individual opinions that the national committee had not the power of itself to change the basis of representation, but that it could call an intermediate convention to make that and other changes.

The sub-committee recommendations will be considered by the national committee here Dec. 15.

500 OPERATIONS ON DAY'S PROGRAM

Three Thousand Surgeons See Knives Wielded at Chicago.

WIDE RANGE OF CASES

Chicago, Nov. 11.—Operating amphitheaters of Chicago hospitals were taxed to their utmost today while the three thousand visiting surgeons of the fourth annual clinical congress crowded in to witness nearly 500 operations in 101 clinics.

Difficulty of following the delicate technique which is the important part of most of the operations caused advocacy of a large special amphitheater for the use of master surgeons in demonstrating new methods to conventions.

A large number of the clinics were given to bone and joint repair. Several bone transplantation operations were demonstrated. The complete rebuilding of ankylosed or solidified joints was shown.

HANDS OFF IS STILL POLICY

United States Makes No Change in Attitude Toward Mexico.

HOPES NATIONS WILL ENDORSE IT

Powers Given Hint to Have No Financial Dealings With Huerta.

Washington, Nov. 11.—Indications today were that the American policy toward Mexico, which it is hoped the nations of the world generally would follow, still was "hands off."

The general interpretation of the situation was that the United States, by giving foreign powers detailed condition of its own determination to refuse to recognize the acts of the new Mexican congress, had indicated a desire that the powers generally refrain from financial dealings with the Huerta government.

A Plain Intimation.

So far as could be learned there has been no specific request for support by the powers, but there has been a plain intimation that the Washington government believes the collapse of the Huerta regime inevitable if foreign aid be withheld.

With the intention to regard as illegal any loans or concessions the new congress may undertake, there has been distinct intimation that a policy of acquiescence by foreign governments would be gratifying to Washington. Without financial aid and with its ma-

WHITE HOUSE FAMILY UNPACKS WEDDING GIFTS.

Washington, Nov. 11.—The family circle at the white house is busily engaged these days in opening boxes, breaking seals and unraveling packages of every shape and size—all containing presents for Miss Jessie Woodrow Wilson, who is to be married Nov. 25 to Francis B. Sayre.

Some of the gifts have come from officials in distant lands. Strict secrecy, however, is being maintained as to the nature of the presents.

EXPERTS STRIKE NEW TAX TANGLE

Horrors! Will Income Law Put Premium on Single Blessedness?

WHO'S GOING TO PAY?

Washington, Nov. 11.—Among the troublesome questions that came up today for consideration by the income tax experts of the treasury department was this one: "Is the income tax going to put a premium on single blessedness?" Advocates of the law contended it would put a premium on marriage, but its interpreters now have found the paragraph affecting married persons not so easy of comprehension after all.

The law reads: "There shall be deducted from the amount of the net income of each of said persons (meaning taxable) the sum of $3,000 plus $1,000 additional exemption of $1,000 he deturn be married man with wife living with him, or plus the sum of $1,000 additional if the person making the return be a married woman with a husband living with her; but in no event shall this additional exemption of $1,000 be deducted by both a husband and wife. Provided that only one deduction of $4,000 shall be made from the aggregate income of both husband and wife when living together."

That looks simple enough, but the experts don't think it is. For instance, they have to rule on whether two married persons living together, each of whom has an income of just $3,000, must pay the tax. As individuals each would be exempt. Does marriage make them with an aggregate income of $6,000 subject to the tax? Another question that does not particularly concern the treasury, but which will interest husbands and wives, is who is to pay the tax in case a joint income is taxable? Is it to be proportioned according to the income of the individuals or the husband to pay it all?

One thing seems certain to the officials. The tax is going to prove an interesting index to marriages for money. Although many a mercenary man who took the step into matrimony will be allowed by his wealthy wife to pay the income tax the chances are good that much of her income is from investments that require the 1 per cent normal tax to be withheld at the source and a comparison of incomes would not be difficult. No one need worry, however, over such a prospect because the returns are to be kept secret anyhow and only a few collectors and treasury officials will know these details.

VAST ESTATE IN WIDOW'S CONTROL

Mrs. Morris Put in Charge of $20,000,000 by Husband's Will.

$315,000 TO CHARITY

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 11.—Mrs. Helen Swift Morris was put in control of the $20,000,000 estate of her husband, Edward Morris, by the will filed in probate court here today. This disposition of the packer's estate makes Mrs. Morris, who inherited a large fortune from her father, Gustavus Swift, one of the wealthiest women in the world.

Charitable bequests total $315,000 among twenty-one beneficiaries named by the testator and others to be named by the widow, who is given $50,000 to be distributed among such charities as she shall select. The largest bequest is one of $100,000 to the pension fund of Morris & Co., of which firm the decedent was the head.

The remainder of the estate goes to Mrs. Morris and the four children. It is left in the hands of six trustees with the deciding vote in case of a tie, to be cast by the widow, who with her sons, Nelson Swift Morris and Edward Morris, jr., minors constitute three of the trustees although the two boys cannot

LOOTS MAILS FOR $10,000

CALMLY RIPPED MAIL SACK OPEN

Tardy Bedecks Himself in Jewels and Finery and Makes Escape.

Chicago, Nov. 11.—Theft of money and jewelry valued at $10,000 from a mail sack, was disclosed today by Col. James Stuart, postoffice inspector here. The crime is alleged by Col. Stuart to have been committed by Albert Tardy, a mail wagon driver.

The theft occurred yesterday. Tardy collected five sacks containing registered packages at the South Water street Masonic Temple and Stock exchange substations.

Suspicion was aroused when the wagon containing four of the sacks was found abandoned at the Union station. These sacks contained $4,000 in money and gems which had not been disturbed.

Find Wife With Difficulty.

Tardy's wife was found today with some difficulty as Tardy had given his address at a number which proved to be a vacant lot. She said Tardy visited her for a few moments last night; told her that he had stolen $10,000 from a mail sack, and would write to her as soon as he had escaped "across the border." He gave her a small sum of money, she said, and left, saying that he would catch a midnight train. Whether for the Canadian or the Mexican border he did not state.

Col. Stuart said Tardy served a term in the Missouri penitentiary for highway robbery and another at Joliet for attempting to steal a truck load of trunks. Tardy was employed by H. G. Steger, who has a contract with the postoffice department to provide all horses and wagons needed by the department in this city. Steger is under bond to make good any losses suffered through him.

Several See Robbery.

The robbery was witnessed by several persons. Instead of driving to the postoffice where he was due at 1 p. m., Tardy went to the railroad station and backed his wagon up among a number of others. With only passing curiosity other drivers saw him unlock the door

CATCH BURGLARS IN KERN'S HOME

Two Robbers Were Looting Residence of Senator at Indianapolis.

HID BENEATH A BED

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 11.—Two burglars were caught hiding under a bed in the home of United States Senator John W. Kern here late last night. No one was at home in the house, the Kern family being in Washington. The men had ransacked the entire place and had gathered up several pieces of jewelry and were getting ready to leave when the police arrived.

The robbers gave their names as Charles Price, 19, a machinist, and Carl Demick, 18, a painter, both of this city.

"Gee, I didn't know that was Senator Kern's house," said Demick, when taken to police station. "We just saw a big house that looked like there was no one at home and thought it would be 'easy picking.'"

Price said he had been out of work for some time on account of a strike and needed money for the support of his mother. Neighbors heard the burglars in the house and called the police.

Fixing the Blame

HENRY T. STAPLEFORD has been carrying his hand bandaged and padded against further injury for a week past. Sympathetic friends galore have tried to make him forget the pain.

"Who's responsible for it?" we asked. We are classed among the above-mentioned sympathetic friends.

"Hosey is," replied Mr. Stapleford, as a sharp pain in the injured member caused an echo from his facial expression.

"Hosey!"

"Yes."

"How is Hosey responsible for it?"

"Well, you see, I was coming along under the elevated tracks that morning when someone across the street back of me yelled, 'Hurrah fer Hosey!' and I turned around to see who it was. There was a board there, sticking up right where it shouldn't have stuck up, and over I started and down I went. Instinctively, I thrust out my hand to catch myself. And this is what I got."

"And down I went."

LOCAL SOLDIERS HOME FROM DUTY

They Say Conditions at Capital Were Bad During Strike.

ALL IN GOOD HEALTH

Members of Company D and of Battery B who returned at 11:30 o'clock Monday evening from Indianapolis, where they were called last week for strike duty, declare that the treatment the state troops received at the capital was as good as could be expected under existing conditions. They also declare that everything was in a bad state of affairs at Indianapolis during the reign of the striking carmen.

None of the militiamen or officials of either Company D or Battery B are able to state when the remainder of the troops will be ordered home, and they do not know why the Auburn and Angola companies of this battalion were selected to remain on duty.

The soldiers state that they were compelled to remain constantly on duty at their respective stopping places in readiness for any hurried orders that might be sent out. Battery B was housed in the armory with Battery A and Battery C and five companies of infantry. Company D was stationed with the Indianapolis infantry. Members of both organizations are in good health.

subduing it were such as to cause the authorities the greatest apprehension should another fire break out. Every possible precaution is being taken by the exhausted firemen and policemen.

For days the telephone and telegraph companies have been battling against the conditions that confront them and with but little success. The immense number of wires down and the loss of so many poles make the task of completing even temporary repairs one of the greatest magnitude. The physical effort required by work in the teeth of the terrible storm is another handicap.

Work of Many Days.

At 10 o'clock this morning a glance through the debris strewn streets led to the belief that days will pass before they can be cleared. All the schools of the city are closed. The danger attendant upon the passing of children through the streets and the unusual conditions surrounding them in the schoolhouses, many of which have been thrown open to the homeless, prompted the authorities to suspend classes until the blizzard abates.

Food Shortage Threatening.

The food shortage, felt Monday afternoon became more pronounced and threatening this morning. There is no milk to be had at any price, except it be obtained in the name of suffering babies and other food stuffs are rapidly going to a premium where it is possible to find them. Many families were caught with little more than the food supply required to carry them over Sunday, and as there have been no shipments received since Saturday the supply is rapidly being exhausted.

The hotels present scene of unusual activity. Many persons driven into the city by the storm have taken shelter where they could find it. Beds were not to be had for all of them and many are sleeping on the floors without cot or covering except such clothing as they happen to have on them. The food supply in the hotels and restaurants is also a problem.

The steamer on the beach at the mouth of the Lorain harbor was later learned to be the J. G. Garmer, Captain Burns, of Buffalo. Life savers are standing by but are helpless to aid because of the high seas. Efforts are being made to bring some order of the chaos precipitated by the storm. Help is being given to the needy in every possible instance, the authorities having the assistance of such of the civic bodies as can summon resources and of those persons who can spare time from their own wants to look after their less fortunate neighbors.

of the wagon cage, calmly rip open one of the sacks and stuff the contents into his pocket. They saw him walk away a short distance and then break into a run.

Mrs. Tardy said she hardly knew him when he came home last night so brilliantly had he bedecked himself from the proceeds of the robbery. He wore a new suit of clothes, necktie, hat and shoes, and his hands were covered with diamond rings," said Mrs. Tardy. She added that she married him only a month ago. They paid $8 a month for a two-room flat.

chinery of government pronounced illegal, officials here expect to see a state of affairs that may force Huerta to eliminate himself.

Silence in Cabinet.

The cabinet met again today with all members present except Secretary Wilson. The Mexican topic was foremost. The raising of the embargo on arms, which has been agreed upon by the president and practically all the secretaries, was discussed at length.

After a two hour discussion devoted principally to the Mexican situation, the cabinet meeting broke up and, as on previous occasions, all the members preserved absolute silence.

WARNING IS SIGNIFICANT.

Westminster Gazette Comment on Case of Much Interest.

London, Nov. 11.—A significant warning to President Huerta was issued today by the Westminster Gazette, the government newspaper. Commenting on Premier Asquith's Guild hall speech, in which he made it plain that no antagonism exists between England and the United States in regard to Mexico, the Gazette says:

"The idea that any valid election—in the sense in which democratic or constitutional countries understand the word—can me held in Mexico is probably a diplomatic fiction, but the electoral test was of General Huerta's own choosing and it is well to keep him reminded that his failure to conform to its results leaves all governments free to reconsider their act of recognition.

"Briefly, the limits of British action are that the British government should not put itself in a position of making protests which, in default of forcible action, might be flouted and defied. But diplomacy has other resources than mere force and Provisional President Huerta may easily find that the attitude of the country is in a variety of ways a matter of great moment to him."

NEW "PENITENTIARY" WILL SPECIALIZE NOT ON CONVICT-MADE GOODS, BUT ON THE MAKING OF MEN.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 11.—The greatest penitentiary in the world is not going to be a penitentiary at all! It is to be a "prison" without walls! It is to be a great industrial institution in which a great state will manufacture men!

This unique, arresting experiment, which, penologists declare, forecast an earth-wide revolution in the practical treatment of criminals, is to have its start in Ohio. Gov. Cox is sponsor for adopting the great idea—an idea which war born in the head and the heart of Rev. Harris R. Cooley, director of Cleveland charities under Tom L. Johnson.

"The state of Ohio is going to explode all the old ideas of treating its criminals, because it is tired of coining gold out of the errors of unfortunates. We will operate on a brusiness basis, of course, but we will save men first!"

The new "penitentiary" of Ohio is going to be a great 1,600-acre farm, modsled after the Cooley farm at Warrensville, which is used by Cleveland instead of the orthodox "workhouse" of other cities.

In this new kind of penitentiary the "prisoners" will sleep in white iron beds—not in cells!

They will work outdoors without guard!

They will go to school to learn the interesting things they have never heard of!

They will be taught trades so when they leave they can earn an honest living out in the world!

They will get exercise, medical attention and the best of foods.

They will get the benefit of all the latest discoveries in scientific penology.

"This innovation of ours is bound to become nation-wide—yes, world-wide," says Governor Cox.

"For any man who approaches the prison question in the spirit of the jailer soon finds he must take to the woods. If there is anything that society has tried and made a complete failure of it is the old-time method of dealing with the so-called criminals—really a relic of the dark ages.

"We have tried to cure 'criminals' by making them work for contractors, by beating them, by stringing them up by their wrists for hours, by giving them the water-cure and by even worse methods. And they have gone out worse criminals than they came in!

"At last science recognizes that there is no 'criminal class.' We have detectives and delinquents—men whose mental powers are weak. Most of them can be helped into a right course. We are going to do this for them in this new kind—this right kind—of penitentiary. This penitentiary, which is not a penitentiary at all—but only a great institution to make men out of those who have gone wrong."

LABOR READY TO DEBATE REPORTS

WILL SAVE MUCH TIME

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 11.—When the American Federation of Labor assembled today for its second day's session, it was ready to take up and debate the reports of committees. The new method of combining all the annual reports into one and that issued by the executive council, is said to have accomplished a saving of two days in the work of the convention. The report of the executive council was separated into several topics, and each turned over to its proper committee for action. Resolutions submitted by delegates were referred at once to the committee on resolutions without even being read. The secretary of labor, Mr. Wilson, will address the convention Wednesday.

So far there has been no outward sign of revolt against the officers of the organization and a continuance of the policies that have been followed.

left aboard the light ship tender Crocus for the vessel's station as soon as its disappearance was reported to him. The vessel was a new craft 150 feet long, wth a thirty foot beam.

IDENTITY STILL UNKNOWN.

Overturned Freighter Doubtless Carried Many to Death.

Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 11.—When the tug Sarnia City returned this forenoon after an all night watch over the big steel freighter which lies upside down in Lake Huron, she brought no additional information as to the identity of the unfortunate vessel. The name of the derelict remains far beneath the water and the waves are still rolling high.

Catain Reid, of the tug, returned more firm than ever in his belief that all of the thirty or forty members of the crew of the six hundred foot freighter must have been drowned. The wreck, not having been reported until late yesterday, it was difficult to ascertain when the disaster occurred and where it took place. The overturned vessel probably drifted several miles. Captain Plough in charge of the local life saing station, left this morning with his crew for the scene of the wreck. Searching arties were also organized to atrol the shore in search of wreckage.

Reports state that a shifting of cargo may have been responsible for the accident.

RECEIVERSHIP IS DISSOLVED

Affairs of Toledo & Chicago Interurban Railway Are Cleared Up.

NEWS OF THE COURTS

In the superior court today, in the suit of Josephine B. Hanson, administratrix of the estate of James B. Hanson, deceased, against the Toledo and Chicago Interurban railroad, the final report of the receiver, James D. Mortimer, was filed and approved and the receiver was discharged. The dissolution of this receivership clears up the once tangled affairs of the corporation, which operates an electrical interurban railway from Fort Wayne to Garrett, Kendallville, Auburn and Waterloo, and the new organization, known as the Fort Wayne and Northeastern Interurban Railway company, is now free to go ahead with its improvements as soon as its financial arrangements can be completed. Hon. William L. Taylor, of Indianapolis, president of the new company, was here to take charge of the proceedings for the dissolution of the receivership. The final report and the court's order of discharge showed that all things and acts ordered and required by the court of the receiver in various orders, judgments and decrees had been complied with; that all the receivers's certificates, preferred claims for injuries and damage claims had been paid, and that all the first mortgage bonds of the corporation, having an aggregate par value of $1,250,000, except three bonds of $1,000 each and three bonds of $500 each, had been surrendered and were in the hands of the receiver. Money of the amount of $1,702.20 was shown to be in the First National bank of Fort Wayne to pay the pro rata share of the outstanding six bonds. The receiver was ordered to cancel all bonds except these six and to pay the money for their redemption into court.

President Taylor stated today that contemplated improvements of the property would be inaugurated as soon as the money market in the east made such financial projects practicable. Extension of the lines north to Angola and west to Goshen are possibilities. General Manager C. J. Munton, of Kendallville, was in consultation here with President Taylor.

Mother of Fifteen Seeks Divorce.

In the superior court Otelia Junghans has sued Edwin F. Junghans for divorce and has been granted an order of court restraining the defendant from molesting her at her home, 2522 South Harrison street, or disposing of his property, which is represented to be worth $10,000. The complaint sets out that they were married in August, 1881, and separated today. The plaintiff charges that her husband has treated her with extreme cruelty, striking and beating her, some times so the blood ran from her mouth, scolding and nagging her and charging that she was an immoral woman. She says he repeatedly told her to leave the premises and refused to get a physician when she was sick. Mrs. Junghans says she has borne fifteen children by the defendant, eleven of them now living, and that of these seven are minors. She asks an allowance of $50 per month for their support.

Was Falsely Accused.

In her divorce complaint to the superior court, Ora Laisure says her husband, Charles H. Laisure, whom she married three years ago, beat and choked her and wrongfully accused her of associations with other men. She says he told her to "pack up and clear out," and forced her to work for her living.

Notes of the Courts.

Martin Klug, in his damage suits in the superior court, was given judgment for $200 against Wallace Reid and $100 against James T. Reid. He occupied a house belonging to the defendants and in a dispute over possession of the property was badly beaten up. He sued for $2,000.

The superior court has given judgment to the plaintiff for $25 and possession of a piano in the suit of Schmoller & Mueller Piano company against Emma Morris.

Cressler Case Comes Back.

A transcript has been received by the clerk of the Allen circuit court showing that Judge Albert B. Anderson, of the United States district court of Indiana, has overruled and denied the motion of the United States Construction company, one of the defendants in the case of George H. Cressler vs. the Kerr Murray Manufacturing company, to remove the case to the federal court for hearing. It is noted that the petitioner excepts to the order to return the case to the Allen circuit court. The ruling of Judge Anderson upholds the ruling of Judge Sol A. Wood, who sat as special judge in the case.

Wants $10,000 Damages.

In the circuit court Nicolaus Deac has sued the Fort Wayne Rolling Mills company for $10,000 damages for personal injuries he alleges he received by fault of the defendant while he was wheeling a barrow load of scrap iron across a narrow plank. He fell upon the barrow and says he sustained internal injuries that are permanent and disable him to do any work. The accident occurred June 2, last.

The case of the Great Northern Manufacturing company vs. the White Fruit House, brought in the superior court, was settled without trial.

Josephine Mergentheim has sued Charles S. Bash, jr., in the circuit court for $75 on account.

In the superior court Henry F. Bullerman, et al., have brought suit against John Colerick, et al., to quiet title.

The superior court has dismissed the suit of George A. Harrod vs. Charles Bachelor.

TRAINMEN GET WAGE INCREASE

Arbitration Under Erdman Act Brings Advance of 7 Per Cent.

100,000 MEN SHARE IT

New York, Nov. 11.—The controversy between forty-one eastern railroads and their conductors and trainmen over wage increases was ended last night.

The employes are granted an increase in wages averaging 7 per cent, totaling $6,000,000 annually—about half of what they wanted—from Oct. 1 last, effective for one year. One hundred thousand men will share in the increase.

Thus ends by arbitration under the Newlands amendment to the Erdman act a dispute that threatened at one time to tie up by strike the transportation facilities of all states east of the Mississippi river and north of the Ohio. The award of the arbitration commission, filed late in the afternoon in the federal district court, is binding and final. The two board representatives of the employes filed a minority report in addition, and the two representatives of the railroads a dissenting opinion.

Based on Living Cost.

In reaching its award the board ruled against the employes on four out of five points submitted as reasons why the increase should be granted and found for them on the fifth—the increased cost of living. Since 11909, when last an increase was granted, the arbitrators found the cost of living has increased 7 per cent.

"The board does not found its action entirely upon the increased cost of living," reads the award, "though it looks upon this as basic."

Without attempting to standardize the rates of pay between railroad employes of the east and the west, the board asserts its belief that it is desirable but not possible at the present time. The award voices the opinion that congress should make an inquiry as to whether there is a substantial reason for the maintenance of a wage differential between the two sections.

"It is suggested that the commission on industrial relations, recently appointed by President Wilson, might carry out the suggested inquiry.

The New Rate of Pay.

An analysis of the vote on each article submitted by the trainmen reveals an almost unbroken coalition between the two representatives of the employes and the two independent members of the board, with the railroads' representatives opposing them. The articles are dealt with separately and fix the pay for various classifications of labor. While technical in verbiage, they provide, chiefly, that the monthly pay of employes in the passenger branch of the service shall be: Conductors, $135; baggagemen, $82.50; flagmen and rear brakemen, $78; brakemen, $76.50; overtime, per hour—conductors, forty-five cents; assistant conductors and ticket collectors, thirty-five and seven-tenths cents; baggagemen, twenty-seven and five-tenth cents; flagmen and rear brakeman, twenty-five cents; brakemen, twenty-five and five-tenth cents.

For the freight service the chief awards are:

Through runs, conductors, four cents a mile; flagmen, two and sixty-seven hundredths a mile; brakemen, two and sixty-seven hundredths a mile, any less than 100 miles to be paid for as if it were 100 miles.

In way freight, pick up or drop, mine and roustabout service, same minimum, conductors are awarded $4.50 a day of 100 miles or less, ten hours or less; flagmen, $3.10 and brakemen, $3.00, overtime to be paid for as time and one-half.

This was one of a few instances in which the employes triumphed in their demands that overtime be paid for at one and one-half the regular rate. The award is distinctly against such practice in most instances. To this finding the employers' representatives filed a minority report of protest. To the entire finding the railroads' representatives dissented.

Railroads Dissent.

"We dissent from this award," reads their report, "because standardization is chimerical and uneconomic; because such increased cost of living as has occurred is not sufficient to justify the increase granted; because statistics prove that risk has decreased and hours of labor have decreased and the weight of evidence is that labor has not decreased."

Of vital importance to the employes is the finding that the present schedules of pay are not to be changed or disturbed in any way where they exceed the amounts named. Nor are employes to be curtailed either in mileage or hours of labor to offset the increases granted.

The railroads' contention that they are between two horns of a dilemma from which there is no apparent escape—is discussed by the arbitrators with this assertion:

"The board believes it must make its findings without any reference to the dilemma in which the railroads are evidently placed. The interstate commerce commission and not this arbitration board has the duty of determining whether the railroads can earn in addition to their other charges without an increase in rates, the rates of pay that this board believes at the present time to be due to the conductors and trainmen."

The Decrease of Hazard.

However, the board calls the attention of the interstate commerce commission to the decrease of hazard that follows the installation of steel cars, double tracking and improved signals. On this point the award says:

"All of these things cost in the aggregate an immense sum of money. Any policy that would make it impossible for the railroads to command this money would be a profound misfortune to the whole nation. Such a policy would be bad enough in its effect upon transportation because it would reduce the efficiency of the railroads; but it would be criminal in the sense that it would make the great army of railroad employes who are numbered by hundreds of thousands, follow their hazardous occupation under conditions more hazardous than are necessary and indeed, more hazardous than are justifiable in a country like this.

"The increasing safety of passengers is equally involved. No American reads the records of railroad accidents in the United States without feeling a sense of reproach. This board wishes to call the attention of the country to its belief that railroad accidents can be reduced almost precisely in proportion to the modernizing of the railroads and the improvement in their equipment."

The board of arbitrators consisted of W. W. Atterbury, vice president of the Pennsylvania railroad, and A. H. Smith, senior vice president of the New York Central, for the railroads; Lucious Sheppard, senior vice president of the Order of Railway Conductors, and Daniel L. Cease, of Cleveland, editor of the Railway Trainman, for the men, and Seth Low, former mayor of New York, and president of the National Civic Federation, and Dr. John H. Finley, New York state commissioner of education, as neutrals.

The arbitrators met here September 11, and spent a month hearing witnesses. After October 11, the board held several protracted executive sessions in an effort to agree upon its report.

Rheumatism

A Home Cure Given by One Who Had It

In the spring of 1898 I was attacked by Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who have it know, for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, and doctor after doctor, but such relief as I received was only temporary. Finally I found a remedy that cured me completely and it has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted and even bedridden and it has never failed in a single case, and it relieves at once in every case.

I want every sufferer from any form of rheumatic trouble to try this marvelous healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address and I will send it free to try. After you have used it and it has proven itself to be that long looked for means of curing your rheumatism, you may send the price of it, one dollar, not, understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer when positive relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay. Write today.

Psalm 55: 12-23.

12 For it was not an enemy that reproached me; then I could have borne it; neither was it he that hated me that did magnify himself against me; then I would have hid myself from him:

13. But it was thou, a man mine equal, my guide, and mine acquaintance.

14 We took sweet counsel together, and walked unto the house of God in company.

15 Let death seize upon them, and let them go down quick into hell; for wickedness is in their dwellings, and among them.

16 As for me, I will call upon God; and the Lord shall save me.

17 Evening and morning, and at noon, will I pray, and cry aloud: and he shall hear my voice.

18 He hath delivered my soul in peace from the battle that was against me; for there were many with me.

19 God shall hear, and afflict them, even he that abideth of old, Selah Because they have no changes, therefore they fear not God.

20 He hath put forth his hands against such as be at peace with him; he hath broken his covenant.

21 The words of his mouth were smoother than butter, but war was in his heart; his words were softer than oil, yet were they drawn swords.

22 Cast thy burden upon the Lord, and he shall sustain thee; he shall never suffer the righteous to be moved.

23 But thou, O God, shalt bring them down into the pit of destruction: bloody and deceitful men shall not live out half their days; but I will trust in thee.

Mr. Bittler's Candidacy

The Sentinel is much pleased to note that the candidacy of George A. Bittler, of this city, for the democratic nomination for treasurer of state in 1914, is being received with high favor in all sections of Indiana. Here in Fort Wayne, where Mr. Bittler was born and reared and where he embarked in business life, he will command the united support of his party quite as much upon the basis of actual merit as upon his notably high personal popularity.

To an eminent degree Mr. Bittler's training, equipment and business bent qualify him for the position he is now seeking. With his earlier years devoted to school teaching and to banking, there was laid the foundation that gave him the particular qualifications for a place of this character. Relinquishing his place behind the cashier's window of a banking house to accept an appointment on the state accounting board, Mr. Bittler has made in that exacting position a record that has won for him the highest commendation from every section of the state. It has given him, also an intimate acquaintance with and a thorough comprehension of the public accounting system of the state that will make him a most valuable member of Indiana's elective official family.

Mr. Bittler is a splendid example of the best type of the young man in American politics. He is honest, clean-cut and square, with ability of the highest order and with an inborn conception of the fact that public service means real service and bounden obligation to the best interests of the people. He is in no sense an experiment in places of trust, for he has already demonstrated his capacity, his tireless energy and his devotion to duty. The splendid following that has already pledged him support during the brief time since his candidacy was announced is an eloquent testimonial to Mr. Bittler's standing here where he is best known, and that support will gain strength daily. The fact that not in many years has Allen county, with its unfailingly large democratic vote, been accorded an elective state office, coupled with the high character and the splendid fitness of Mr. Bittler for the place he now seeks, should make his nomination and his election certain.

It is interesting to note the possibility that Henry T. Hunt, who failed of re-election as mayor of Cincinnati, may now be employed as city manager by Dayton, which has just adopted a modification of the commission form of government. The five commissioners at Dayton will proceed to employ some competent executive as city manager, who will be virtually mayor of the city, naming the heads of departments and holding office at the will of the commission. That means that so long as Dayton's city manager directs the affairs of the city capably he will be kept on the job, precisely as would the executive head of a great industrial or commercial corporation. Dayton, in short, is making its municipal affairs a business and not a political matter.

Enthusiastic friends of Mayor-elect Bell at Indianapolis are already forecasting his election as governor of Indiana without the formality of asking the rest of the state if it has any views whatever upon the subject. However, this is a little peculiarity that has often been noted on the part of the state capital in "off" years.

Officials of the association have about concluded to hold the next Indiana state apple show in Fort Wayne. Not only will a final decision to this effect be warmly seconded here, but Fort Wayne will take a great deal of pleasure in making it the biggest show of its kind the state has ever known.

THE PREFERENTIAL VOTE.

(Pittsburg Dispatch.)

Cleveland seems to like its initial experiment with the preferential ballot. Under the law, a majority is required to elect. If, as in Tuesday's election, none of the candidates gets a majority, the votes cast for them on the second choice column are added, and the candiate securing a majority so is elected. A third choice column is also included on the ballot, but it was not needed, as Mayor Baker's second choice vote gave him re-election.

The Plain Dealer approves the innovation as doing away with the election of candidates by minorities. Where there are three or more candidates in the field it frequently happens that the victor under the ordinary system represents but a small minority of the voters. Where partisan differences may divide voters into minorities it is argued, that convinced of the impossibility of electing their first choice, most voters would have a decided preference as to the others, and the preferential ballot gives them an opportunity to vote that choice.

In Oregon the preferential ballot was adopted to do away with the primary elections. In Wisconsin and Idaho it was adopted to prevent a minority capturing a party nomination.

Campaign Against High Prices Brings Eggs Down in New York.

New York, Nov. 11.—The National Housewives' league already claims encouraging results in the campaign begun yesterday against the high price of eggs. Mrs. Julian Heath, the president of the league, and eleven other women, spent all day yesterday canvassing the city to learn what effect the league's ultimatum had had and they asserted today that all of the stores had cut off at least a few cents from the prevailing high prices. In some places the best storage eggs were selling as low as 33 cents a dozen against 37 cents, the low figure for Saturday. In some of the higher priced stores, however, fancy eggs were priced as high as 75 cents a dozen.

The Daven-o

The dictionary of popular opinion says the word "DAVEN-O" means the highest grade upholstered davenport, having concealed within it a genuine metal bed.

This remarkable invention stands alone in the world as a successful combination of bed and davenport, with absolutely no sacrifice of appearance or comfort either.

Economy of Space---Yet Solid Comfort

The principle upon which the DAVEN-O is constructed is fully protected by many patents and positively cannot be found in any other combination bed. It is actually a full-size, real bed for constant use (not for emergencies only), to all effects like a stationary bed, so concealed in a luxurious davenport that even an expert could not detect its double use.

On account of the perfection of the DAVEN-O as a davenport it has gone into the finest homes in America. The DAVEN-O is simply indispensable in small quarters, and no matter how many rooms you have there are always occasions when an extra bed is needed.

Remember the points that make it different from all others:

1. Working parts—Nothing but a hinge. Cannot get out of order.
2. You do not sleep on the upholstery, but on regular springs with thick mattress.
3. It is not to be made up at night, but in the morning, like any other bed.
4. All bed clothes, even pillows, are retained in bed, not stored away.
5. The bed part is made entirely of metal—therefore, perfectly sanitary.

A thousand other advantages will come to your mind as you look at it and compare it with other makes.

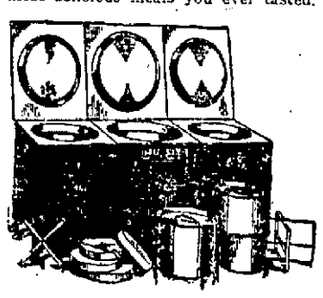
THE IDEAL FIRELESS COOK STOVE

An automatic maid, that never gets careless, never wants a day out, never burns the food, never wants to leave—that relieves you of three-fourths of your kitchen work, saves you four-fifths of your fuel bill—and cooks the most delicious meals you ever tasted.



Roasts, Bakes, Steams, Stews, Fries, Boils.

Aluminum lined, water sealed top, perfectly insulated, beautifully finished—no other fireless cook stove like it.

Fireless cooking is the simplest of all methods of cooking. Follow your own favorite recipes—the food will be more nutritious and more delicious than you have ever before served.

HEAT INSULTATION.

Fireless cooking is made possible only by heat retention. Over a gas flame, or any other fuel, heat is produced constantly, but not retained. The fire must be kept going every minute, because the heat will be lost as rapidly as a slow fire can create it.

Only a very small part of the heat created is absorbed by the actual cooking process; all the rest is wasted fuel for which you pay.

Once cooking has been thoroughly begun, it will continue as long as the heat is retained. And the food will be cooked better than by the continuous process, which boils and steams away valuable food properties, besides cooking too rapidly.

The whole secret of heat retention is found in perfect heat insulation. A fireless cooker can lose heat in two ways: through its walls and through its top. Our WATER SEALED, heat insulated top makes it impossible for heat to escape in that direction, and our walls, being the thikest sheets of aluminium used, stop it at the sides.

Call and see it.

HAVE ONE CENT TO PAY $500.

Jay and Blackford County Commissioners Must Issue Bonds.

Portland, Ind., Nov. 11.—Meeting in this city in joint session the commissioners of Jay and Blackford counties decided not to appeal the Taylor road case to the supreme court.

In the trial of a suit brought by Frank J. Wright, of Pennville, contractor, the commissioners lost, judgment being rendered in favor of Wright and the acceptance of the highway as completed being ordered by the court.

Today the payment of $5,974.73 to Wright was made, leaving the commissioners with but one cent in the fund to meet other expenses amounting to probably $500, which include court costs. It will now be necessary to issue bonds to take care of this unpaid cost of the improvement.

The road after being completed was damaged by the March floods before it had been accepted and much extra expense will also be necessary to repair it.

This is Guaranteed to Stop Your Cough

Make this Family Supply of Cough Syrup at Home and Save $2.

This plan makes a pint of better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $2.50. A few doses usually conquer an ordinary cough—relieves even whooping cough quickly. Simple as it is, no better remedy can be had at any price.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with ½ pint of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a pint bottle; then add the Sugar Syrup. It has a pleasant taste and lasts a family a long time. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. Has a good tonic effect, braces up the appetite, and is slightly laxative, too, which is helpful. A handy remedy for hoarseness, spasmodic croup, bronchitis, bronchial asthma and whooping cough.

The effect of pine on the membranes is well known. Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of Norwegian white pine extract, and is rich in guaiacol and other natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this combination.

This Pinex and Sugar Syrup remedy has often been imitated, though never successfully. It is now used in more homes than any other cough remedy.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hoover accompanied Mrs. Hoover and Mr. Schawl. Mr. Schawl is a fireman, Mr. Havens is a machinist.

AT THE TEMPLE

There are several "headliners" at the Temple theater just now so far as classy entertainment goes and the audiences differ in the degree of enthusiasm with which they receive the acts only as they appreciate them. But for extremely high class vaudeville, as good as good as she ever did on the legitimate stage, see Julie Ring. Or to be more to the point see Miss Ring and company, for she has two assistants who keep up the professional standard she sets. The play sparkles with genuine, clean and witty lines. It is surely as fetching an act as one might find in a month of Sundays.

Morrell and Jaeger open the bill with a bunch of songs and novelties that makes a great hit. They are fast and furiously funny. Joe McGee, recently of the Al G. Fields minstrels, gives all the laughs expected. He is an experienced entertainer and can tickle his audience just about half to death, which is what people want.

An act that is both beautiful as well as a double-twister in laughmaking is the Kelso brothers with their club juggling and comedy. The act is full of surprises and one of the easiest to look at seen among the numerous performances of jugglers. They too made a big hit with everybody who saw them yesterday and that was all the people who could get into the playhouse.

After all the preceding laughs on came Edward Barnes and Wahel Robinson. No more fetching singers and jugglers of songs and music come round than these favorites. They have a string of nonsense that they fire at individuals in the audience and at each other until it's a wonder they have any breath left to sing a few real tones and a bit of a real song now and then. Shrieks of laughter greeted the most of the act. Then came that charming and graceful creature who looks no bigger than a slim nine-year-old girl, Elsie Gilbert with her four pretty and graceful dancers and her trained collies. The act is very fast and very pretty and Miss Gilbert herself deserves all the nice things one can think of to say about her.

Makes Face Young—Tightens Love Ties

("Aurilla" in Woman's Sphere.)

A fretful expression, a wrinkled face and a faded complexion do more to drive the male members from home than is commonly supposed. It was one of my greatest difficulties to appear smiling, fresh and elegant when my dear ones were with me. But I have overcome all that. I have changed my mental attitude and I now find it second nature to look cheerful. One partly to this, partly to a remarkable treatment recommended by a friend, my appearance has so improved I look fifteen years younger than before.

A simple face lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel proved a wonderful wrinkle chaser. I still use this occasionally. To renovate my complexion I purchased an ounce of ordinary mercolized wax at my druggist's and before going this up, a marvelous transformation had taken place. It was like removing an unsightly mask, revealing a new face, a youthful complexion of distinctive delicacy, clear, white and velvety. I merely applied the wax like cold cream before retiring, washing it off mornings. Ten days' treatment sufficed.

AT THE EMPRESS

There is much interesting in vaudeville today, but nothing has been contributed by any nation that outshines, in a gymnastic way, the exhibition of the Parisian troupe, The Adas, now at the Empress theater. While the Adas are listed as Parisians, the septette do in fact represent many countries, the seven in all speaking fifteen different languages. It is a remarkable aggregation and to demonstrate the difficulties they encounter, it is necessary for English to be translated five times before it can be imparted to one of the young women. But two members of the troupe speak English. The act is sensational in the extreme and is one of the really big features of variety. The Empress will hold an interesting souvenir day on Thursday, when 500 sugar shells will be given away at each matinee, besides teaspoons and other articles of silverware. It will be sort of a bargain day when every woman will be permitted to name her choice of gift and get it. Friday will bring another big amateur show, there being many new faces elected to take part.

"Everywoman" at Majestic

A rarely beautiful and impressive entertainment, produced with a lavishness in scenic investiture that Henry W. Savage has probably never before exceeded is "Everywoman," of which the first of four performances was given last night at the Majestic theater. There is not a detail in this remarkable performance that is not apparently the perfection of its kind. From the first notes of the orchestra of which the instrumentation is unusual, to the appearance of "Nobody" before the velvet curtain, as he speaks the closing words concerning the play, the performance has a charm and an atmosphere that might be compared momentarily to a glimpse of magnificent scenery. Surely, if one misses any of the truth the play portrays, its lesson if one chooses to call it that, no one can escape the feeling of having seen the unusual.

As a performance of lovely pictures, with a bit of dancing that is suggestive of nymphs, with snatches of beautiful song now and then, sometimes a solo, again a bit of men's chorus work with rich and harmonious colors and costumes that in texture and gorgeousness might adorn any gathering where society and wealth might gather, and a prodigal display of scenic investment, "Everywoman" takes second place to none. In fact no scene has been set on the Majestic stage that excelled it if it equalled the scene of New Year's eve on Broadway, New York, as pictured in this play. One might easily go again and again and yet find some detail that had previously escaped his eye. It is a magnificent production.

Musically, too, the entertainment has a dignity, a lightness, and a beauty that should be heard more than once to fully appreciate. It is a gratification to know that the music is the work of an American composer, G. W. Chadwick, upon whose head honors have been falling for some years. There are times when the music is so alluring that one's ear is loth to let go lest the play leaves no opportunity to repeat and the eye and ear are compelled to go on with the play of which the dominant idea is the power of truth. No minister could preach so powerful a sermon on that virtue as does this play. Yet there is no preaching in the play and its lines and its morals are well expressed in its closing lines, "Be merciful, be just, be fair to everywoman, everywhere. Her faults are many. Nobody's the blame."

And that every woman should see the play, especially if she be young, that she might thereby learn to better appreciate herself and that every man should see the play that he might better understand not only everywoman but himself, was the consensus of opinion of those who saw the performance last night. However, one can go and view the entertainment as he would a musical comedy, with due attention to gowns, and graceful movements, and gorgeous and brilliant pictures and the music and follow the thread of the play with no more thought than he would give a vaudeville act, and yet not yawn before the curtain falls for the close, so impressive is the performance. The performance of the entire company was convincing.

Miss Thais Magrane, who enacts the role of Everywoman again tonight, gives an exceptionally finely balanced and artistic performance. She draws the comparisons which the development of her role demands with great nicety and is as delightfully ingenious and youthful in the first act as she is serious and appreciative of what she finds in the end. She enters into the spirit of revelry in the act portraying the supper scene, one of immense detail and beauty, too, with no hint of the vulgar or unrefinement. Mr. Grandin reads the lines of Nobody with a beautiful clearness and makes the part a power in the performance.

Health and Beauty Hints

BY MRS. MAE MARTYN.

Grace: Certainly that brittleness of hair and your dandruff are dangerous conditions and should be corected quickly by a prope rshampoo. Get some canthrox from your druggist and dissolve a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water, then pour this mixture on the head slowly and rub well. This makes an abundance of rich, cleansing lather, and rinsing leaves the scalp and hair wonderfully sweet and clean. These shampoos are very soothing to tender, itchy scalps and so invigorate the hair roots that a growth of glossy, fluffy, even-colored hair results. Canthrox shampoos are invaluable to the finest growth of hair and prevent as well as overcome all scalp and hair difficulties.

Lotta M.: There is a simple, inexpensive treatment for hairy growths. Mix a thick paste with some powdered delatone and water. Apply to hairs not wanted and in two or three minutes rub off and the skin will be smooth and hairless. Then wash the skin to remove the remaining delatone.

Gloria: I always use a crystos tonic for my eyes when they are weak, watery and inflamed, or use it as an eye wash when I am going to dinners or parties and wish to look especially nice. I buy an ounce of crystos from my druggist and put into one pint clear water, then place two or three drops in each eye a few times a day until they are strong again. This eye tonic is also very good for granulated lids and will give a sparkle and delightful expression to dull, expressionless eyes.

Dolly: Your itchy scalp can be relieved and cured, as well as the falling hair, by the use of quinine tonic which at least a dozen of my personal friends are using and making at home from an ounce of quinzoin dissolved in a half pint of alcohol, to which should be added a half pint of water. They use this regularly by massaging into the roots of the hair and they claim the itching stops immediately, and the tonic improves the growth of the hair and helps nature make it beautiful and healthy.

Hortense: Indeed, you can easily cure that tired, depressed feeling which is accompanied with such a sallow condition of the face. They are caused by sluggish blood (very common in the fall and winter months) which is not properly eliminating the poisons from the system. Try this blood purifier and tonic: Into one-half pint alcohol (whisky must not be used) pour one ounce kardene, then add one-half cupful sugar and hot water to make a full quart. Take one tablespoonful of this old-fashioned blood cleanser and tonic before each meal. This is splendid for that weak, worn feeling and restores the kidneys to normal action and the blood to a healthy condition. Its timely use will save much serious sickness.

Teacher: In your case the wrinkles and lines in your skin are probably caused by its extreme dryness. To remove them use this preparation which you can make for yourself, which will act rapidly and restore the softness and natural tone to the skin. Get an ounce of almonzoin at the drug store and dissolve it in one-half pint cold water, adding two tablespoonfuls glycerine. Apply this before retiring and leave over night. This will remove wrinkles, prevent crow's feet and make your face soft and satiny. Since it has removed my crow's feet I use it to clear and whiten my skin.

Anna: No, don't make yourself miserable by unnecessary dieting or indulging in violent exercise to reduce fat. Make up and take this simple reducer and your weight will soon be just where you want it: Dissolve four ounces parnotis in one and one-half pints hot water; when it cools strain and take a tablespoonful before meals. This parnotis reducer acts gently, is quite harmless and entirely satisfactory results are quickly attained.

Girlie: I have rejuvenated my complexion and again have the velvety rose-tint skin of my girlhood. I stopped using powder and now use this simple, inexpensive lotion: In one-half pint witch hazel or hot water dissolve four ounces spurmax, then add two teaspoonfuls glycerine. This lotion dries quickly after being applied and is invisible. Use it on the face, neck, arms and hands and it will impart to the skin that youthful purity and exquisite tint it is impossible to obtain any other way. It is excellent for chaps, cold sores and to protect against fall winds, and dispels the oily, sallow, rough condition in a very short time.

CHANCE SEEKS A COACH FOR TEAM

Wants a Man to Develop Young Pitchers for His New York Highlanders.

EYE ON FOUR MEN

New York, Nov. 11.—Frank Chance is looking around for a coach who will develop his young pitchers in the way Wilbert Robinson, now released, steadied Rube Marquard and other Giant twirlers.

He would like a catcher, a veteran who knows the pitcher's game thoroughly from the receiving end. It is understood he likes Johnny Kling, but probably can't later went to the Reds.

Kling was a superb catcher for the Cubs back in the days when Chance managed them. Then Kling slowed up, was traded by C. W. Murphy to Boston, and later went t othe Reds.

Kling helped Joe Tinker to develop Indian Johnson, also young Packard, the left-hander, but at the end of the season the former Cub catcher announced that he would not come back next year. As other National league clubs need coaches of Kling's quality it is believed that if Tinker should decide to let him go it would be impossible to get him out of the circuit.

There are four veteran catchers in the American league who would be of valuable assistance to Chance. They are Thomas and Lapp, of the Athletics, Billy Sullivan, of the White Sox, and Oscar Stanage, of the Detroits. As Connie Mack has the premier backstop in Wally Schang it is thought that Chance may be able to obtain either Thomas or Lapp Thomas did very little work in regular games this year, but Mack kept him extremely busy coaching young pitchers, Bush, Pennock, Wyckoff, Houck, Shawkey and Brown. Lapp did some coaching, too, but he was used more frequently as Plank's regular catcher.

Sullivan did no regular work for the White Sox, as Callahan used Schalk, Kuhn and Easterly. Sullivan several years ago was considered the star catcher of the American league, chiefly for the reason that he knew how to handle the pitchers. Chance saw him catch in many of the White Sox-Cub games and became one of his warmest friends. If Comiskey decides to turn Sullivan loose Chance is sure to put in a bid for the old timer's services.

Stanage, after a fine record with the Tigers, lost ground this year because young McKee was able to show better results. Stanage, it is said, has grown dissatisfied and would welcome a deal by which he could become a member of the New Yorks.

HARD LUCK KEPT PLAYER ON BENCH

Kirkpatrick Had No Chance to Show Worth on the Brooklyn Team.

RETURNS TO MINORS

Dayton, O., Nov. 11.—Announcement was made Friday evening that Enos Kirkpatrick, utility infielder of the Brooklyn Nationals, has been sold to the Toronto club of the International league. This news came as a surprise to the fans of this city, where he got his real start in the baseball game, and from which club he was sold to the Brooklyn team.

Ill fortune more than any lack of ability, has resulted in the former Vet going back to the minors. When he was sold to the Brooklyn club in the summer of 1911 experts picked him as one of the best ball players sent to the majors in a long time. Bill Clancy, the veteran first sacker of the Fort Wayne team of that year, declared Kirkpatrick was one of the real finest looking youngsters he had ever seen, and easily the best ball player in the Central league. And there were some good ball players in the Central that season.

His presence here that season was more or less of an accident. Punch Knoll had secured several youngsters to try out for that position, but Hugo Swartling, of the Zanesville club, wrote the Vet leader a letter in which he advised him to pick up Kirkpatrick. Punch told the player to come on, and from the day he joined the team in practice he was a regular. In 137 games he hit for an average of .272, a big mark when it is considered he was the lead-off man all season. He stole 41 bases and improved daily in his work at third base. So brilliant was his playing he was sold to the Brooklyn club early in the season.

After getting a brief trial in the fall of that year at Brooklyn he was shipped to the Dodger farm at Newark, the next season. He had a great year there in 1912, playing second and short, hitting for .305 and showing fine form in all departments of the game. Naturally Brooklyn grabbed him again that fall and all last year he filled the utility role on the Dahlen outfit. Here is where his ill-fortune got in its work. Had he been sold to Cincinnati, Boston or some other team in need of good infielders he would have been given every opportunity to display his real worth, and the chances are he would have developed into a big league star. But there was no chance of his breaking into that Brooklyn inner circle where there is an abundance of high-class material. With Daubert at first, Cutshaw at second, Fisher at short and Smith on third, Sir William Dahlen has an infield that will rank with almost any other in the majors, and as none of these fellows broke a leg or sprained an ankle, all there was for Kirkpatrick to do was to play the second game of double-headers now and then and occasionally pat for some pitcher. And even this last opportunity was seldom granted as Earl Yingling developed into a great pinch swatter this season and he got most of the jobs of that nature.

As a result Kirkpatrick spent the season on the bench and for a player of his ambition the bench is a poor place. Dahlen tried to shove him back to Newark last season, but George Stallings, who had seen him when the latter was managing Buffalo, refused to waive claim and he stuck. Now it seems a compromise must have been effected with the Boston team for he has been allowed to get out of the National, and is once more in the International. At Toronto he will be under Joe Kelley, the old Baltimore star, and former manager of the Reds, and with this battling leader in charge of the team Kirkpatrick is practically certain to have another great season.

STRIKEOUT KING TO REACH 1,500

BEST IN SEVEN YEARS

It is a little bit early to print stories about what will happen in baseball next year, but one of the things that is pretty sure to happen is that Walter Johnson will then pass the 1,500 mark in strikeouts unless he breaks his priceless arm or decides to abandon the national game. The man who won the Chalmers car for being the most valuable player in the American league last season has, since he entered fast company, chalked 1,465 strikeout victims. No other major league hurler, has in the seven consecutive seasons from 1907 to 1913, amassed this total—in fact, only three other men have fanned over 1,000 ball players in this length of time. These three are Ed Walsh, Nap Rucker and Christy Mathewson.

Big Ed Walsh, the spitball star of the White Sox, has been Johnson's closest rival for the title of the strikeout king of the majors. The Chicagoan has compelled 1,465 of his to take the whiff route to the bench since he has been a contemporary of the illustrious Washingtonian. Walsh twirled only in sixteen games last season, but from 1907 to 1913, inclusive, he has been in forty-eight more battles than has the renowned Kansan.

Christy Mathewson has fanned 1,137 men in the last seven campaigns and Nap Rucker 1,128. Eddie Plank, Connie Mack's peerless portsider, almost reached the thousand mark in that time, 997 of his adversaries taking the strikeout count. Chief Bender claimed 864 victims, Howard Camnitz 804, Jack Coombs 784, Mordecai Peter Centennial Brown 747, Leon Ames 748, George Mullin 704, Harry White 628, Ed Reulbach 693, and George Wiltse 580.

Johnson's average of strikeouts per game from 1907 to 1913, inclusive, has been 5.41, Ed Walsh's figures being 4.38 and Chief Bender's 4.02. Only two of the men mentioned in this article have averaged more than 200 strikeouts per campaign, the pair being Johnson and Walsh. The easterner's average is 208, the westerner's 201. Ranking third on this basis is Christy Mathewson, with 162. Walsh has been the busiest toiler from 1907 to 1913 inclusive, with "Big Six" next in line.

Here are the totals of strikeouts piled up by the fourteen major league hurlers from 1907 to 1913, inclusive:

ROBERT MELSHEIMER.

Although this young hunter did not kill all the ducks with which he was photographed he has had a lot of experience in the marshes for a boy of 14 years and has killed a number. These were brought in by Lewis Melsheimer, father of the lad in the picture, and represented a day's shooting in the Kankakee marshes.

The father is an ardent sportsman and his boy inherited a taste for field sports and has accompanied his father since his legs were strong enough to carry him for a day. He has his own hunting outfit and promises to become a noted hunter.

RITCHIE DECLARED WINNER.

Leach Had Best of Two Rounds of Madison Square Boxing Match.

New York, Nov. 11.—Willie Ritchie, lightweight champion of the world, defeated Leach Cross, of this city, in a ten-round bout, which went the limit at Madison Square garden last night.

The men weighed in at 9 o'clock, both under the stipulated weight of 135 pounds. The ringside weights were announced as Ritchie 137 pounds and Cross 136½.

With the exception of the first round, which was even, and the eighth, in which Cross had a decided advantage, Ritchie had the honors.

In the second, after a mixup, Ritchie fell backwards on his shoulders over Cross, who was in a stooping position. Though the fall was a heavy one, Ritchie did not seem to be much the worse for it.

STRAYED from home about June 10, a Llewellyn Setter, white with black and tan points. A reward of twenty-five dollars will be given for his return to 123 E. Jefferson St., Ft. Wayne. 10-3t

CENTRAL LEAGUE CHANGED BYLAWS

Presidents to Be Elected at Fall Meeting to Give a Start.

CLOSED UP BUSINESS

One important change made in the bylaws of the Central league at the meeting in Columbus and one that President Louis Heilbroner stated before he left for the session he would present and insist on is the change in the time of electing the president.

Heretofore the election has been held at the midwinter meeting, usually held in January, and to put a new man in harness with only a few weeks to map out his plans, sign his umpires and attend to the thousand and one details have gave him a chance to make good. There was no doubt of the election of Mr. Heilbroner, who made an excellent impression, but some changes in the policy of conducting affairs were suggested at Grand Rapids and he was advised of them before it was decided to continue him in office.

His election at Columbus was made possible by a change in the constitution and he knows where he's "at" now and can go ahead with his preparations. The elimination of Dr. Frank R. Carson came about in the selection of Claude H. Varnell, spoken of in the press news out of Columbus as "the prince of minor league owners," as vice president. Last year the doctor was named vice president to permit him to retain his place on the national board of arbitration, the court of appeals of the minor leagues, but he has concluded probably to retire and did not ask his place back again.

Tom O'Conner, former president of the Erie club, and one of the best hustlers in baseball, asked on behalf of the city to be considered an applicant for a berth, and his letter was placed on file. It was determined at the meeting this fall to stick to the half dozen circuit, but there are so many possibilities in the game that it's a good idea to have one city to count on in event of disaster. Should any of the present towns fall down in attendance Erie would make a nice "comfy" sort of a place to put a club in.

There will be no further meeting of the league until March and for the reason that Indianapolis is a central point, that city will get the gathering. At this session a schedule will be adopted which will be practically a duplicate of last season's playing list. It will have the same number of games and play will start the last Wednesday in April and close on Labor day.

This determination carried out another of the president's pet schemes. When he left he announced that he would try hard to avoid a gathering in January for the reason that he considered it useless expense, as nothing of importance has ever been accomplished except where unusual conditions existed.

The circuit has been fixed and most of the business started so that only one more meeting will be necessary to close up and from now until time for signing up players and watching to keep them from jumping to the Federal league, there will be little business for the directors.

Every Central league club was represented at the meeting, and although there were many details disposed of, there was not much of general interest to the public.

In spite of a couple of failures—one under his administration and one under his predecessor—Mr. Heilbroner says he will again organize the sport writers on the circuit and will tender them a banquet at the spring meeting in Indianapolis.

WILL POWER MADE A CHAMPION OF A PUNY BUT TENACIOUS LAD.

RITCHIE AS HE LOOKS TODAY.

San Francisco, Nov. 11—When Willie Ritchie of ten or twelve years ago, a skinny little runt with a chicken breast, determined to clothe his bones with those lightning-quick muscles which were to get him the lightweight championship of the world, his associates in the old San Francisco mission district jeered him unmercifully.

Skinny little runts had no business with big ambitions. They ought to be content to get through life at all. So his neighbors thought.

To swallow their taunts and ye tkeep on plugging with not a single encouragement was one of Willie Ritchie's hardest battles, more monotonous than any he ever fought in the ring, says the champion today. The battles against vice and dissipations, the things that pull the climber down and clog the good red blood of the boys who forge ahead—in all these he came out victor.

It is a romance of obscure training camps and the big moments on the rosined mat which must appeal to every boy and man, because it is the story of the average boy's battle to win to the top.

Ten years ago two ways opened up for Willie Ritchie, as they do for every boy. "One to rowdyism, dissipation and failure—the gutter road.

The other to big achievement through clean living and tireless ambition.

Ritchie took the high road.

"What I have achieved is due entirely to absolutely clean living. No smoking, no drinking, no dissipation of any sort. That is the way I prepared myself for the big chance in the prize ring, through innumerable preliminary battles, with alluring weaknesses," says Ritchie.

"And that is the way every boy must condition himself for his big chance, whether it is to be in the prize ring or in the business or professional world."

A bronzed, lithe, eager boy—he is only 23—with pride and modesty mingling in his clear eyes; a compact web of rippling muscles where the chicken breast used to protrude, with humilliating distinctness; with clean-cut features; well groomed and debonaire; about as ferocious looking as a shepherd lad—that is a picture of the chmapion today.

A winner, with every line of his body testifying to his clean living—the secret of his mastery.

Ritchie's own story of how he became a champion will be told in a series of articles, the first of which will be published in The Sentinel of tomorrow.

Structural Iron Worker Saved from Death—Three Ribs Broken.

Baltimore, Nov. 11.—James E. Bond, 31 years old, a structural iron worker, plunged headfirst from the fourth tier of the iron superstructure of public school No. 83, Lakewood avenue and Fayette street. Only the fact that Bond is a large man and that his body became wedged between two cross pieces saved him from falling to the basement of the building, fifty feet below.

As it was, he struck between two beams on the second floor and hung there. Fellow workmen rushed to his assistance and he was sent to St. Joseph's hospital. Three of his ribs were broken and his left arm was badly lacerated.

WISCONSIN HAS A DRUG HARVEST

State Has Undeveloped Resource in Crude Product

SAYS DRUG DEALER

Cleveland, O., Nov. 10.—Wisconsin has a large and undeveloped resource in crude drugs, both wild and capable of cultivation, according to Louis Sulzer, a member of a firm which deals in crude drugs.

"Wisconsin and adjoining states," according to Mr. Sulzer, "abound in crude drugs; hundreds of thousands of dollars could be dug out of the earth each year. Few people know that the obnoxious jimpson leaf and also the seed which abounds around the barnyard and are considered a nuisance are worth five cents per pound and are used in certain remedies; also the burdock, which is such a pest to the thrifty farmer, is salable—both the root and the seed. Mandrake, commonly called Mayapple, also is a commercial value; in fact, podophyllin manufactured from Mayapple root is the body of many pills, and we handle each season from ten to fifteen carloads of fifteen tons each of the dry root in Madison. Blood root, called by the digger red puccoon, is also salable at four to five cents per pound, and is very plentiful in Wisconsin. Slippery elm, which in some sections of this state is very plentiful, is also valuable and is used in poultices, etc., and is worth from 4 to 10 cents per pound.

"I could go on and enumerate a hundred or more different roots, barks and herbs which are salable. Our specialty has always been golden seal, commonly called yellow root. Twenty-five years ago this article was selling at fifteen to twenty-five cents per pound, and in Kentucky, Tennessee and West Virginia the digger took it to the country store and traded it in for groceries and other necessaries of life. The demand has increased for over a quarter of a century until the wild root became almost exhausted. Values increased steadily until the fall of 1911, when we were paying $4.25 to $4.75 for clean and dry dug root.

"However, Uncle Sam has not been asleep, but has been advocating the cultivation of this valuable drug, and we find the cultivated root as good as the wild.

"We have also found a market for the herb, or top, which has always been considered worthless until last season. We received the first order ever placed for this article and this season renewed the same, which means quite a good deal to the hundreds of growers of golden seal. In replanting golden seal, growers can save the fibers, which are worth almost half as much as the whole root. All roots should be gathered in the fall, as then they have fully matured and have attained their medicinal virtues. Herbs and leaves should be gathered early in the spring and the stems should be thrown away.

"All bark should be peeled early in the spring while the sap is up. Wahoo bark can best be peeled by beating lightly with a mallet, which will loosen the bark very easily; for slippery elm a drawing knife should be used. In peeling all bark, care should be exercised lest wood be cut with the bark."

An Old Recipe to Darken Hair

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you have darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.—Adv.

QUIT THEIR RENT-FREE HOME.

Couple Who Lived in Passenger Car Decline to Pay for Repairs.

Leavenworth, Kan., Nov. 11.—L. K. Long, his son Roy and his wife have moved into a Platte City residence after having spent the last five years of their lives in a passenger coach near Leavenworth, which had been cast away by the Rock Island.

Twenty-five years ago the coach was thrown off at the point where it now stands and since then various persons have lived in it free from rent, in return for which the switch lights were kept full of oil.

Not long since the roof began to leak and the sides became rather weather-beaten. Long applied to the company for repairs and was refused. Rather than pay for the repairs he and his family moved to Platte City.

For Children There Is Nothing Better.

A cough medicine for children must help their coughs and colds without bad effects on their little stomachs and bowels. Foley's Honey and Tar exactly fits this need. No opiates, no sour stomach, no constipation follows its use. Stops colds, wheezy breathing, coughs and croup are all quickly helped.—Adv.

SNAKE BREAKS UP SERVICE.

Reptile Crawls From Organ and Women Flee.

Snyder, Tex., Nov. 11.—A snake brought about the sudden closing of service last Sunday night at the Ennis Creek Baptist church, near here.

The pastor had just closed his sermon, during which he admonished men against strong drink and the congregation was in the midst of the last hymn when the reptile, three feet long, crawled out of the organ at the feet of the woman playing. She screamed. Other women saw the snake and they screamed. There was a rush for the doors and the hymn was left unfinished.

Would Make Them Better If They Could

The makers of Foley Kidney Pills know that they have absolutely the best combination of curative and healing medicines for kidney and bladder ailments and urinary irregularities that it is possible to produce. That is why Foley Kidney Pills are the best medicine for the purpose you can buy.—Adv.

THE DISCOVERY OF A SIMPLE RECIPE HAS BROUGHT A FORTUNE

A recipe was made by a singer who had suffered for years with severe indigestion, and by the help of a celebrated French doctor, who had told him of a vegetable with marvelous digestive properties, this vegetable was used in a sauce which the singer added to his food and in the cooking. Carloads of Waw-Waw have now been sent to different parts of the world, and in every place it has had a phenomenal success. The best cooks in Europe pronounced the sauce unexcelled. It adds a zest and piquancy when used in the cooking and with soups, salads, hot and cold meats and fish which is unequalled, and at the same time one feels one can digest anything. Waw-Waw (an obsolete South American Indian word for vegetable) is a purely vegetable sauce and contains no raw spices and is guaranteed absolutely pure. Waw-Waw is unlike all other sauces and although it resembles a Worcestershire, yet the ingredients used are quite different. It costs very little to try this wonderful Waw-Waw, which is now to be found in the principal hotels, railroads and homes in America. A 25 cent bottle will convince you how much more you will enjoy your food by adding Waw-Waw and how easily you will digest your food.

ALL FORT WAYNE ROADS AFFECTED

Awards of the Arbitration Board Increase Wages Most on Small Roads.

SNOW BLOCKADE HAS BEEN BROKEN

Pennsylvania and Nickel Plate Trains Moving Over Entire Lines.

If the newspaper account of the decision of the arbitrating board on the matter of wages of conductors, brakemen and baggagemen on the lines east of Chicago is correct, the decision will affect the little roads running in and out of Fort Wayne to a greater extent than the roads classed as the trunk lines. The Wabash is classed with the western roads and is not affected by the decision, and the Lake Erie and Western and the Lake Shore do not have headquarters here and no definite information concerning the effect upon those lines could be obtained this morning. However, it is generally believed that those lines are "hit" harder than the other Fort Wayne roads, because the wages were less than on the other roads.

On the Pennsylvania and the Grand Rapids and Indiana roads the recently promoted passenger conductors will be benefited, because the decision raises the guaranteed monthly earnings to $155; it is now $125. If correctly quoted, the decision fixes the minimum wage of the passenger conductor on the Pennsylvania, between Fort Wayne and Chicago, forty-four cents below the present wages. The through freight men will receive about the same as they do now, but the local freight conductor will get an increase of fifty cents per trip.

The increase on the G. R. & I. will average over 7 per cent. It will go nearer 10 per cent., one of the officers said. "As I understand the decision from the newspaper accounts of it, our men will be affected from 3 to 12 per cent.," said the official. "We will not know definitely until we receive a more complete statement from the board of arbitration and do some figuring."

"The guarantee does not affect our passenger conductors, because it is now $147 per month, $12 more than the minimum fixed by the board," said a Nickel Plate man. "At a rough guess I would say that the local freight conductors will get an increase of 47 cents per trip and the through freight conductors will get an increase of thirty-seven cents per 100 miles," he said. With some of the local railway officials the result of the arbitration is a surprise, while some expected such a finding.

SNOW BLOCKADE BROKEN.

Trains Now Running Through Snow Infested Territory.

The worst November snow blockade in the history of the Pennsylvania and Nickel Plate roads has been broken and trains on those lines are now running through the troubled territory. The Pennsylvania succeeded in breaking the blockade yesterday and last night and this morning its trains were covering the line between Pittsburg and Chicago nearly on schedule time.

The first passenger train from Cleveland over the Nickel Plate to reach the city since Sunday arrived at 11 o'clock last night. It was made up of the cars used in taking the excursionists to Cleveland last Saturday and it was to have made the return trip Sunday night, but was delayed by the storm and did not reach Fort Wayne until last night, though it left the Cleveland station at 8 o'clock Sunday night. The cars in this train had no vestibules and when they reached Fort Wayne they were a mass of snow and ice, bearing evidence of the severity of the storm they had been in. One hundred and fifty of the excursionists from this city came home on this train. The others arrived home this afternoon on the three trains, Nos. 1, 3 and 5, which were due here yesterday. They came in as one train running in three sections of about a half-hour interval, the first one arriving about 1:30 o'clock. Although the company did its best to make the passengers comfortable—and they did not suffer from cold or hunger—they were tired and pretty thoroughly disgusted, more with the weather than anything else, when they reached home.

Two years ago the Buffalo division of the Nickel Plate had a similar experience with a snow storm and it came on the same day of the month. Its effects were not as lasting nor did they reach as far as the storm of last Sunday.

HONORED THEIR COMRADE.

Nickel Plate Shopmen Give Louis Merillat Surprise.

The employes at the Nickel Plate round house and shops had one of the most enjoyable times of their lives last night and at the same time assisted one of their number in celebrating his birthday. The event was in honor of Louis F. Merillat, of 419 Greenwood avenue, a foreman at the round house and in the estimation of his associates and friends a "prince of a fellow." It was a surprise, suggested by the boys and carried to consummation by Mrs. Merillat, assisted by the Misses Pearl Merillat and Bertha Diner, who were present last night. The features of the evening were a grand supper, cards and music and the presentation of tokens of esteem to Mr. Merillat. Among the guests were General Foreman C. L. Cooper, Chief Clerk H. L. Reed, H. A. Ulenhake, W. C. Cherry, H. Kohrman, G. Kibiger, R. Swinehart, C. Pritchard, E. Doeling, D. Carpenter, A. C. Rall, C. A. Kiger, F. Bailey, W. A. Fosler, Perry Getz, C. J. Magers and G. Merillat. Mr. Merillat has been employed by the Nickel Plate for nearly a quarter of a century and with the exception of a short time at Cleveland, most of his service was on the Western division, with headquarters in Fort Wayne. Until a year or two ago he was a caller of engine crews, but for some time he has been a foreman at nights in the round house and shops.

THE COST OF CARAELESSNESS.

The pamphlet issued this month by the Publication department of the Pennsylvania is devoted to matters pertaining to safety and under the caption of "Things to Think About" are a number of incidents. One illustrates how a derby hat proved fatal. As related at the Manhattan division safety first exposition, held in the Pennsylvania station in New York, the incident is as follows:

"A sub-station foreman of an electric line in northern Indiana was explaining some work to his men in a recently built sub-station. To point out some details of construction, he used a derby hat held in his hand. The rim of the hat came in contact with wiring, which completed the circuit from the high tension line through his body to the ground. This caused a shock which proved fatal. It developed later that the rim of the hat was reinforced with a small steel wire."

HUNTERS RETURN WITH GAME.

A. W. Hicks, assistant yardmaster of the Pennsylvania; Conductors H. Shelly, Fred Ene and A. Nofzgar, also of the Pennsylvania, arrived home last night from the wilds of New Brunswick, where they spent two weeks most successfully in hunting big game. They brought the carcasses of six deer and two moose with them and left the carcass of one moose in a cold storage plant in St. John to be shipped later. One of the deer—a magnificent antlered animal weighing over 200 pounds—was killed by Mr. Hicks. He will have the head mounted and placed in his home as a trophy and ornament. This party was camped on Chin creek in New Brunswick, where game is plentiful. Mr. Hicks says that the party saw thirty-three moose and fifty-one deer, including those killed and brought to Fort Wayne.

TOOTH OUT AND LIPS CUT.

While his helper was wielding a heavy sledge hammer yesterday afternoon, Blacksmith M. Hengsteler, of the Pennsylvania shops, got within the swinging area of the tool and it landed a blow on his mouth, cutting the lips badly and knocking one of the teeth out. Dr. D. R. Benninghoff attended the unfortunate man, who will be off duty several days.

CALLING IN THE FURLOUGHED.

With the advent of winter weather and the increase of traffic on the road the Nickel Plate is increasing the train crews and most all of the furloughed firemen have been recalled. Among them are V. A. Chaney, H. E. Nulf, L. C. Brunner, J. Bruchy, A. T. Meeks, R. Gibford, J. Frederickson and R. T. Smith. These men have been off duty, working at something else, for the past three months and are glad to get back in railway work.

FLORIDA CAR TWICE A WEEK.

Arrangements have been made by the Grand Rapids and Indiana and the Louisville and Nashville companies to commence November 25 running a through sleeper from Fort Wayne to Jacksonville, Fla., leaving this city on train No. 4 and Tuesday and Friday nights.

FIXING UP THE HEATING PLANTS.

Boilermaker H. W. G. Heine and Machinist Frank L. Hebert are out on the Western division of the Pennsylvania looking after the boilers and machinery in the stationary and heating plants of the company. They make this trip twice each year, in the spring and in the fall.

ENGINEER O'BRIEN TO MARRY.

Tomorrow morning at 6 o'clock, at St. Patrick's church, Michael O'Brien and Miss Birdie O'Conner will be married. Mr. O'Brien is a Pennsylvania locomotive engineer and one of the best known railway men in the city.

INDUSTRIAL NOTES.

Pennsylvania Shopmen M. J. Maloney and C. Hess are sick and off duty.

A. M. Bauer took employment in the Pennsylvania machine shop this morning.

Machinist Fred Romary, of the Pennsylvania, is off duty on account of his wife being sick.

Jesse Lipkey, buyer for the Eckart Packing company, was out shooting quail yesterday.

H. Phillips, a Pennsylvania flue welder, who had been sick, reported for duty this morning.

S. E. Jordan, a former Pennsylvania brakeman, has taken employment with the Nickel Plate.

Foreman Frank Benoy, of the Bass boiler shop, went to Chicago this morning on business for the company.

Machinist Allen Hamilton is absent from the Pennsylvania shops on account of the illness of his wife.

William Duell, who was hurt last week, resumed work at the Pennsylvania erecting shop this morning.

Supt. W. M. Wardrop and Division Engineer Guy Scott, of the Pennsylvania, are attending a meeting in Indianapolis today.

Sunday Engineer R. E. Helsel was taken sick at Stony Island and had to come home. He is better, but still unable to work.

Arthur Williams, assistant foreman of the Pennsylvania tool room, who was sick several weeks, is at work again, having nearly recovered.

Master Mechanic G. W. Smith and Chief Clerk O. O. Rohrbaugh, of the Wabash, are in St. Thomas, Ont., today on business for the company.

C. P. Smith, for two years a crane operator at the Pennsylvania shops, has resigned and gone to the Traction company to work as an electrician.

William Hill, Nickel Plate weighmaster, expects to report for duty tomorrow morning. He has been disabled by a lame leg for a week.

Nickel Plate Conductor George Clark, who had been visiting his daughter in Toledo, has reported for work. Brakeman A. B. Heise has also reported for work on that road, after a week's lay off.

Nickel Plate Engineer Charles Morton and Firemen F. W. Pappert and William Hooper have resumed their duties on the Nickel Plate after an absence for various reasons.

A. J. Himes, formerly superintendent of grade elimination on the Nickel Plate, has a new title, though his duties remain the same. Hereafter he will be titled the valuation engineer.

A. Schoda, F. Fagin and F. Bacc—Nickel Plate engineers, have obtained a week's leave of absence and have gone north to hunt. Engineer Charles Boyce has also taken a week off. He will look after private business.

W. H. Tegeder and E. L. Roth resumed their respective duties in the Pennsylvania erecting shop this morning. Each had been suffering from blood poisoning growing out of injuries to their hands.

A visitor at the Nickel Plate round house and shops yesterday was Otto Kouger, a machinist in the Stony Island shops. He is quite well known to the Nickel Plate men in this city, although he never lived here.

The Wabash will furnish a special train to bring in the football team and the people from Wabash next Sunday and a crowd of 300 has been guaranteed. The occasion is the game between the Friars and the Wabash teams.

Gibson Sisco, of the Southwest system, headquarters at Columbus, and Lloyd Jones, of the Central system, headquarters at Toledo, assistant engineer of motive power of the Pennsylvania, were here yesterday on business for the company.

Mr. and Mrs. I. F. Walters will leave on Pennsylvania train No. 8 this evening for Erie to attend the funeral of John Wilk, the father of Mrs. Walters, who died yesterday, after a long illness. Mr. Walters is the watchman at the Pennsylvania shop gate on Clinton street.

The Wabash's clamshell derrick arrived here today and will remain and handle coal until the steel docks have been rebuilt. A gang of structural iron workers are engaged on the wreckage now and will soon have the collapsed reservoir and trimmings torn asunder and the pieces ready for use in the new docks.

Mr. and Mrs. John Perry, the uncle and aunt of Mrs. Frank Opatz, who had been visiting the latter five weeks, left this morning for their home in Los Angeles. The visitors formerly lived here, going to California twenty years ago. They saw snow, except that in the mountains, for the first time Sunday since they left here a score of years ago. Mr. Perry is a bricklayer and cement worker.

After twenty-seven years service in the yards at Shadyside of the Pennsylvania, Henry Aul was recently struck and killed by a fast express train. The records showed that Mr. Aul was never injured nor responsible for injury to others and he was considered a model employe. He was careless in this one instance concerning his own safety, however, and the train struck and killed him. This illustrates how fatal it may be to relax vigilance even for an instant while working about a railroad.

ENORMOUS GROWTH OF SUGAR BEETS

100 Tons Produced from Three Acres is the Announcement

NEWLY BROKEN LAND

Clifton, Col., Nov. 11.—What is said to be the heaviest yield of sugar beets in the state, if not in the United States, was produced this year by Stevenson Bros., who have shipped just 100 tons from a three-acre patch.

P. P. Stevenson, who has been growing beets for twelve years, says that it has broken all his past records, while the records at the Grand Junction sugar factory this year show no other yield nearly so large.

The beets were grown on land which was in potatoes a year ago—and which prior to that time had never been broken. Altogether the Stevensons have twenty acres of beets which they say will average better than twenty tons to the acre. They gave the usual amount of cultivation and irrigation, and say they have no formula to induce heavy yields aside from ordinary care. On the twenty acres they will receive more than $2,000, and this amount will be for them almost clear profit, as they obtained the land rent free conditional only on taking care of the young apple trees.

The yield is better than the figures indicate, because of the fact that no allowance has been made for the space taken up by the trees.

The sugar factory at Grand Junction is just completing its first month's run, and will break all records this fall. October 15 the first payment for beets was made to the growers, approximating $100,000.

The total distribution to the beet growers of the western slope this season will exceed $500,000, and there will be a distribution of about the same amount for labor and material used in the factory.

The Grand Junction mill will distribute over a million dollars this season, which will continue until February. The mill is grinding about 700 tons of beets every day and turning out an average of 1,500 sacks of sugar daily. The yield for the season is expected to be 275,000 sacks of sugar. There has already been a thirty cents per hundred reduction in price because of the tariff, but no other reductions are anticipated for the present, unless the cane and beet interests should become engaged in a price war.

Upon the returns to the stockholders from this season's crop will depend to a very great extent the plans for next year, which at present contemplate the erection of a new factory at either Delta or Montrose.

The Allen lodge No. 29, Degree of Honor, will give a progressive pedro party this evening at the lodge rooms in Aldine hall.

GEORGE STOTLAR KICKED BY MULE

Was Rendered Unconscious When Animal's Hoofs Hit Forehead

AT BROOKSIDE FARM

George Stotlar, a farm laborer, is confined to the home of his brother-in-law, J. A. Roussey, 925 Crescent avenue, suffering from a deep and painful cut across his forehead sustained at 5:30 o'clock Monday evening when he was kicked in the head by a mule at the Brookside farm west of the city.

Stotlar had been working on the farm during the day, and, according to witnesses, had unhitched the team of mules he had been driving, when one of the animals wheeled and landed one hoof a short distance above Stotlar's right eye. Stotlar was rendered unconscious for several minutes. The wound was dressed by Dr. C. R. Dancer. It is said that Stotlar's condition was made more serious by a great loss of blood before medical aid could reach him.

HAS OPERATION TO PROVE CLAIM

Establishes Proof That Appendix Has Been Removed

IN FIRST OPERATION

Spokane, Nov. 10.—Convinced that her appendix was removed during an operation performed for another disorder a year ago by Dr. T. E. Hoxsey and other physicians, Mrs. Lydia Murray, who was ordered by a jury in the superior court last month to pay the physician for services, has undergone a second operation to prove that she lost her appendix at the former operation. Following the second operation, performed recently she has filed a motion for a new trial, declaring that the operation showed the appendix had been removed.

Mrs. Murray is the wife of F. J. Murray, formerly in the employ of the Great Northern at Hillyard. Recently he was transferred to Devil's Lake, N. D., where he is a yardmaster for the road.

In her affidavit filed with the motion for a new trial Mrs. Murray says: "I am the same Lydia Murray upon whom Drs. Hoxey and Yarnell testified they operated and did not remove my appendix."

She further alleges that she had had but one operation performed up to the time of the trial. This was by Dr. Hoxsey and assistants. She declares that she wished to know if her appendix had been removed and said that she desired to have the physicians remove the appendix on the second operation in case it had not been taken out.

The affidavit further declares regarding the second operation:

"I employed Dr. J. D. Windell to perform the operation, and he was assisted by Dr. A. E. McDowell, Dr. H. P. Marshall and Dr. Oscar Stenberg. The operation was performed on September 25 at the Spokane General hospital in the city of Spokane."

Not only Mrs. Murray, but her attorney, N. E. Nuzum, and four physicians have submitted affidavits to prove that the appendix was removed at a previous operation. The original operation, as shown at the trial, was performed by Drs. J. H. and T. H. Hoxsey and Dr. S. Garnell.

The second operation was performed after Mrs Murray was ordered to pay Dr. Hoxsey $285 for performing the first operation.

The affidavit filed by Attorney N. E. Nuzum asserts that he called up R. J. Danson, attorney for Dr. Hoxsey, the day before the operation was performed and asked him to invite Dr. Hoxsey or any representative he desired to witness the operation. He alleges that Attorney Danson said they did not care to have a physician present.

Dr. A. E. McDowell in an affidavit says that he assisted in the operation with orders to remove the appendix if it were found. He declares that it had been removed during a previous operation. Dr. Oscar Stenberg and Dr. H. P. Marshall made similar affidavits as to the findings.

DRAGGED HIMSELF FIFTEEN MILES

Man Who Broke Ankle in Fall Amazes Hospital.

Milton Pa., Nov. 11.—When Irwin Flynn, of Shamokin, fell from a wall at this place, he suffered a broken right ankle and superficial injuries. It pained him severely and he lay unable to move for several hours.

Without funds to pay carfare he hobbled, walked and crawled for fifteen miles, then he finally reached the Mary M Packer hospital, Sunbury. There the good nurses took him in and examined him. They found two broken bones.

Told that he had managed to go all that distance, they were amazed and stated that they never heard of such a thing. With his leg in a plaster cast and propped up by pillows, Flynn is being lionized for his Spartan courage and is called a hero.

UNVEILING IS DEFERRED.

Hannibal, Mo., Nov. 11.—Because of the lateness of the season the bronze monument of Mark Twain, which was completed here yesterday, will not be unveiled until next spring. At that time appropriate exercises will be held. The figure of the humorist has been placed on a granite base in Riverview park, overlooking the Mississippi river, where Twain romped as a boy.

The Searchlight Utility — The Marvel of the Age —As a Heating Stove

The construction of the Searchlight is the only means of properly heating the base and floor—the SEARCHLIGHT heats the floor five feet from the stove—all so-called hard coal base burners, excepting the Searchlight, heat directly under the stove—and should be called cat warmers instead of floor heaters.

NO DIRT—NO CLINKERS—NO GAS—everything is consumed—no fine ashes to settle on the stove or furniture—The SEARCHLIGHT burns Pea, Chestnut, Stove and Egg size Coal.

The Searchlight Utility Return Flue Floor Heater will heat properly from three to eight rooms in zero weather.

The Searchlight Utility has more than four times the direct radiating surface than the so-called Base Burner, and the firepot is guaranteed for 25c years.

SOME OF THE MOST IMPORTANT COMPARISONS

The biggest and best part of the so-called Base burner is covered up and sacrificed for appearance. That is wrong, because you need the heat more than the looks. The Searchlight Utility has the appearance, and not one bit of it is covered up.

The so-called Base Burner cannot be controlled as it should be without appealing to check damper back of the firepot. That is wrong for two reasons—the check damper deadens the fire, retards the heat and the coal burns and is wasted.

The Searchlight Utility overcomes this. It does away with a check draft; you can regulate the heat to any desired degree with J. B. Howard Combustion Damper (patented) and with no waste of fuel or making of clinkers.

The so-called Base Burner is wrong for twenty-five different reasons, which we will explain if you will come into our store, or let us send you a booklet.

If you want to save coal, save labor and have a clean, warm house and heat the floor five feet from the stove, and have the same temperature when you get up in the morning that you had when you went to bed in zero weather or below zero, buy a Searchlight Utility, invented and constructed by J. B. Howard.

You will find it only at The Fort Wayne Outfitters Company

The Searchlight

The J. B. HOWARD Combustion—the only device which will absolutely consume the smoke—is embodied in the Florence Hot Blast and the Searchlight Utility only—the Firepot in the Florence is guaranteed for 10 years—the Firepot in the Searchlight is guaranteed for 25 years—the Florence and the Searchlight are not experiments—they are assured successes.

HERE ARE FIVE OF THE 124 REASONS FOR THE BAZAR WHICH OPENS TONIGHT IN ST. MARY'S SCHOOL HALL.

In order to provide funds for the orphans in St. Vincent's home the members of the Catholic Benevolent League of Indiana living in Fort Wayne and vicinity are making great preparations for the bazar that will open tonight at St. Mary's hall.

Here are five of the one hundred and twenty-four little tots who need the things these funds will buy and they posed for The Sentinel at the home. Just who they are makes no difference, but they look well kept and the playthings were taken from the stock with which they are provided. The bazar promises to be a big success with much friendly rivalry among the members of the congregations interested and this is bound to bring good results.

BOY WITH BROKEN NECK TO RECOVER

Patient on Hospital Bed With Weight Fastened to His Head

PARALYSIS LEAVES

St. Louis, Nov. 11.—Charles Edward Selb, a 17-year-old member of the Ironton (Ohio) football team, who suffered a broken neck while practicing football, is now said to be practically cured by the physicians who have been treating him at the Baptist hospital, Garrison and Franklin avenues, since last May. Dr. Benjamin L. Dorsey, of No. 1422 North Taylor avenue, has assured Selb he will be able to return to his home in a few weeks.

When Selb was taken to Dr. Dorsey after being assured by some physicians that he was not badly hurt and by others that he had not more than two months to live, Dr. Dorsey found by an X-ray examination that the second vertebra from the head, where the head rests on the spinal column, was broken, and that the bone hook from the second vertebra, which projects over the rim of the first vertebra, was fractured.

In Bed for Five Months.

After that for more than five months Selb lay in bed at the hospital with a 150-pound weight pulling on his head to relieve all pressure from the spinal column. When he had sufficiently recovered to be permitted to sit up a steel frame was built over his head. To this was fastened a leather strap, which bound his head and fastened under his chin, and which fastened to a series of straps about his body.

Resting on his hips was a steel band to which the frame over his head was fastened, making a rigid arch over his head, with all weight resting on his hips. The effect of this was to leave his head suspended from the frame and to relieve the spinal column of any of the weight of the head. At night, when he goes to bed, the weight is fastened to his head.

The treatment has consisted of massage of the muscles surrounding the spinal column, the purpose being so to strengthen the muscles that they will hold in their proper places the broken pieces of the vertebra. Although Dr. Dorsey, from an ethical standpoint, refused to discuss the case, he told Selb that these muscles were now greatly strengthened and in time would be strong enough for him to discard the steel frame and permit the head its natural rest. He said that possibly Selb would need to wear a support about his neck to assist the muscles, but that he was not sure, but that even the support could be done away with.

Selb told this story to a reporter:

"In October, 1911, while I was a senior in the high school at Ironton, I played halfback on the football team. We were practicing for our Thanksgiving game with Cincinnati, and I tackled another player about the knees.

Long Period of Suffering.

"I was made unconscious and remained so for several hours. I was treated by physicians in Ironton and apparently recovered. The doctors told me that I had a stiff neck and that it was not serious. I returned to school, but soon became subject to the most terrible headaches. My father took me to Cincinnati, where a physician took an X-ray picture of my neck. He made the mistake of taking the picture from in front. It did not show the break, and he sent me back home, saying I would soon be all right.

"Not long after that I noticed that my head was gradually being pulled to one side, and I began to suffer severe pains. [illegible] the use of my right arm became impaired and then it became paralyzed.

"This was in April of this year. I became alarmed and my father brought me to St. Louis. A number of doctors examined me. Most of them said my injury was not serious and that time would cure me. One doctor, however, told father that nothing could be done for me and that I would not live more than two months.

"We then went to see Dr. Dorsey. He took X-ray pictures which showed the exact trouble, and he sent me to the hospital. That was in May.

"When I was injured I weighed 182 pounds and was six feet one and a half inches tall. When I entered the hospital I weighed eighty pounds. My food would not digest and I was completely paralyzed in both legs and arms. I now weigh 120 pounds and have recovered the use of my arms and legs and everything I eat nourishes my body. I can now walk several blocks without difficulty."

SULLIVAN TALKS OF RACE SUICIDE

TOO MUCH SOCIETY

Philadelphia, Nov. 11.—"The modern women"—John L. Sullivan's left fist crashed down on his knee with a force that made the little blonde woman who sat looking at him in awestruck wonder, jump—"I'm going against 'em—dead against 'em."

"Too much society," the ex-prize fighter growled. "Too much thinkin' about what other men think about her looks, and not enough about what her husband thinks of her character. Half the time they haven't got any husbands at that. Bachelor girls, huh; my idea of nothin' to be.

"Get me on this, too, we're goin' to have race suicide, sure as a black man loves corn bread and fat meat. Know why we're goin' to have it? 'Cause the ladies want to keep a stylish figure. It's gettin' so that if a man wants a family, he's got to guarantee his wife he'll buy her a plaster of paris cast, so she won't lose her shape.

"Naw," he continued, "gimme the old-fashioned girl—like I used to know when I was a youngster. I ain't sayin' anything about morals, mind you. I'm just talkin' about the way they look at things—at life.

"But the young men ain't much better at that. Too much education, booze, and bein' good fellows. You know I'm raising an adopted son up on my farm near Boston. He's ten years old. I was talkin' to him not long ago.

"'So,' I says, 'if you want to make good in this world, let the booze alone—let women alone until you feel like you want to get married, work hard at the job you're on, no matter what it is, don't get the fool notion in your head that you ought to go to college—and keep out of politics.'"

WOMAN TO RAISE NEW FARM CACTUS

On Texas Ranch She is to Cultivate Spineless Variety.

WATCH EXPERIMENT

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 11.—A woman, 74 years old, is to establish the only spineless cactus ranch in the southwest. She is Mrs. E. V. Pickerell, of this city, and she intends to go into this peculiar business on a wholesale scale. She is enthusiastic over the proposition and has recently returned from California, where she thoroughly studied and investigated the spineless cactus, its growth and uses. Mrs. Pickerell has ordered 700 Burbank samples and will plant these on her farm near here and later increase the amount. Each plant will grow thirty-five slabs a year and make excellent and cheap fodder for horses, cattle, hogs and even poultry.

Little has been done with the plant so far, except in an experimental way, but Mrs. Pickerell sees an opportunity to make it pay and be the "first on the ground." The spineless cactus is a semi-tropical plant and will not grow or thrive where the temperature reaches zero. That low temperature, however, is very rarely reached in El Paso.

In addition to the slabs used for forage, the plant also bears a fruit that is pleasing to the taste. It somewhat resembles the orange. The plant also may be cut into strips and fried or boiled. In fact, those who have sampled the cactus food have found it very appetizing. Luther Burbank not long ago gave a banquet at which all the dishes served consisted of the spineless cactus cooked in various forms. A test was made at the Burbank ranch recently with this cactus. One cow was pastured on the spineless cactus and another was fed on alfalfa. The animal which ate the cactus produced one-third more butter than the alfalfa-fed cow.

This cactus will grow in any place that is not too damp. It requires no water and it thrives on alkali soil. While the plant produces rapidly, it does not spread, and the little shoots must be taken off and transplanted. In two weeks after a plant has been set out it is covered with these shoots.

Luther Burbank has a wonderful pasture of the spineless cactus in California. The spineless variety was more of an evolution than a discovery. Burbank went to Mexico and obtained cacti having the fewest number of spines. With these he raised plants and each plant which had the fewest spines he selected to continue the experiment until he had completely eliminated all spins.

The cactus is quite hardy, needs little care and is of little expense. Other crops in the southwest need irrigation. The spineless cactus, of course, will thrive without irrigation or water. Mrs. Pickerell believes her move will be the salvation of stockmen and solve for them a perplexing problem, as the cacti will give them abundant food for cattle when other crops and grass are a failure.

Covered with the spineless cactus, the great plains of Texas alone could furnish enough food to supply the world.

G.V.Electrics

Electric Trucks vs. Horses

The best City draft horse lasts on an average but four years, which means that his annual depreciation is 25%. Pretty steep, isn't it?

1,708 horses died from the heat in Greater New York in the first 15 days of last July. As high as 25 ice-maimed horses have been shot in a single day by the police and the S. P. C. A.

Are your horses fully insured?

The Electric Truck has 100% greater working capacity than the best draft horse grown and requires 75% less housing space. A G. V. Electric never gets sunstroke; it does not have to work alternate days only; it gets no broken legs, never gets sick or runs away; is cleaner, surer and cheaper than the best combination of horses ever devised.

You can drive a G. V. Electric into a freight elevator and load or unload it on the desired floor without fire risk, odor or dirt. You can equip a G. V. truck with an electric winch operated by the truck battery and elevate heavy cases or warp machinery on and off it. You can buy a G. V. Electric in any one six standardized sizes, ranging from 700 to 10,000 lbs. capacity, and operate the one best adapted to your needs, singly or in fleets, at from 25% to 60% less than a corresponding quota of horses.

DISAPPOINTMENT in love has driven men to play strange freaks with their lonely lives, to risk them in war and in sport. But, so far as I know, Allan Vincent's case is the only one in which the vanquished took to ballooning.

Vincent was not simply a member of the I. R. C.—George Bernard Shaw's sardonic brand for the Idle Rich Class. Despite his inherited fortune, Vincent was a worker. But his work was not what most hurrying men of to-day consider work.

Vincent's ambition was to work at music seriously—to win a place in the world as a composer. But his many friends—to say nothing about the society newspapers—would have none of it. They considered his music as a detail of his social life, a decoration, an interesting but rather wearisome fad. The conventional, insincere applause they heaped on the few efforts he made public were more discouraging to Vincent than the worst attack of any critic.

Nevertheless, he might have fought on against these conditions if Irene Champney had not been among those who misunderstood him. But she was.

Irene was also wealthy, and also an enthusiast; but she was never laughed at nor afflicted with patronizing applause—at least, not that she was aware of. Her enthusiasm was Social Reform (with capitals). She had lived in a settlement in a slum district, written articles for journals devoted to sociology, and lectured before working girls' clubs.

Irene, with the perfervid zeal of the recruit in the ranks of Social Reform, considered Vincent the veriest trifler—a man who wasted time, wealth, and life. She tried to reform him, at first, and failed. Despite his almost timid bearing, his trite, hesitating manner of speech, Irene found Vincent more stubborn than she had thought.

So the shadow grew between them, deepened, and drove them apart. There was no quarrel. He asked her to marry him. She refused. And they continued to drift apart.

Vincent's drift was upward, in his balloon. He had begun as a mere distraction, and then the fascination of the thing took hold upon him.

An odd idea came to him, and abided. He brooded over it a long time; and as he could not shake it off, he ended by bowing to it.

It might prove a possible way to make Irene see her mistake. Yet the chance was a slim one. He had already heard it said, in several quarters, that Irene had found "her ideal" in the person of Gregory Baldwin, the millionaire writer of skeptical philosophy, who, combating society's luxuriousness, lived on his five-hundred-thousand-dollar steam-yacht, that cost another twenty-five thousand dollars to keep up, and went sailing through all the seven seas.

Thereupon, Vincent's ascents became more frequent. As he continued to be an amiable person, even in the midst of his very real sorrow—of which few even of his intimates were aware—many of his friends derived pleasure from his hobby. It became quite the fashion to have Vincent bring his balloon to some country house and give ascensions, taking people up with him or having "captive balloon parties."

At one of these house-parties—at Caspar Jardine's place, near Providence—Vincent again met Irene. As a matter of fact, he engineered the meeting. They met as civilized persons, even sweethearts who have parted, meet—with decorum and without reference to the past. Coolness in the present—that was all. But it was enough to make Vincent inwardly rage. Its effect on Irene was not apparent.

But although she was cool toward him, she was very warmly interested in his balloon. She did not tell him so, but she arranged with Mrs. Jardine to be one of the three persons to go up with Vincent on a flight he meant to make with the next northwest wind, inland toward Massachusetts. Her aunt, Mrs. Chapple, held up hands of horror, and cabled to Irene's father, who was in Europe. That portly man of affairs, however, had long ago given up trying to interfere with his daughter. He merely cabled back:

"Go up and chaperon her, then."

Which Mrs. Chapple energetically refused to do;

The next day came the wind and the ascension. The house-party went in to Providence, to the gas-works from which the ascension was to be made, Jardine, Mrs. Holdway, a charming widow, Jardine's sister and Irene were to go up with Vincent.

At least, so Mrs. Jardine planned it. Vincent arranged matters differently. He spent five minutes in earnest consultation with his assistants; then when the big bag was inflated, he dexterously maneuvered Irene into the car. His assistants at the same time were dragging away the sand-bags which kept the balloon anchored, but they now discovered something amiss. On the pretext that their weight would retard the work of arranging the ropes, they kept Jardine and Mrs. Holdway from entering the car.

Then, suddenly, they appeared to lose control of the anchor-ropes—they tugged and shouted—Vincent cried out excited orders—the house-party uttered helpless "Ohs!" and "Ahs!" and the big bag shot up above the heads of the crowd. It was not for nothing that Vincent paid his assistants well.

Up, up the Explorer, as Vincent called his air-ship, shot; or, rather, it seemed to the speechless Irene that the earth dropped and dropped and dropped while she hung motionless. She felt no fear; only a swift sense of exhilaration.

"Oh, isn't it glorious!" she cried to Vincent, forgetting, for the moment, her aloofness from him and the queer predicament in which the unexplained accident had placed her.

"Glorious, indeed," said Vincent, intently watching her face, that was flushed with excitement and a new, strange pleasure. "Don't think there is any danger. The balloon is all right. The difficulty was—ah—with the cords." Which was true—in a way.

Then the sense of her position came to Irene, and she faced Vincent.

"But you will drop back, will you not, Mr. Vincent, and get the rest of the party?" she said, as if asking him to stop a motor-car, or to steer a launch to a mooring.

"I fear it is impossible," he replied. "I could not come within twenty miles of the place in this wind."

"But of course, then, you will descend somewhere as soon as you can?" she said, rather coldly. For Vincent did not even make a semblance of regret that he could not go back for Jardine and Mrs. Holdway, and Irene was accustomed to deference to her wishes, especially from Vincent.

"Yes," he answered; "I'll drop down when I can do it safely. Meanwhile, can you not enjoy your trip?"

For a moment she was silent. Then, looking through the sun-sparkling vast below, at the towns and fields and woods and streams and the gleam of the distant sea in the east, she slowly said:

"Yes, honestly, I can, and I do. This—oh, words are feeble—this is freedom."

"That is a good word," he said. "Yes, there is freedom up here. Things get clear from the earth's atmosphere. There is truth up here, Miss Champney."

She looked at him with a dim surprise in her eyes. The pure air was like a flood of crystal, her own thoughts running clearer, and Vincent's thoughts seemed to run clearer. His speech was not the stumbling, conventional speech which had irritated her in the old days.

With a smile, and yet with a strange earnestness, he continued:

"Yes, there is truth up here, and I must not let an untruth be between us. It is no accident that you are here, alone, with me. I arranged it."

She gasped at the sheer audacity of the disclosure and of the act. Truly, this was a new Vincent—this explorer of the upper air. She knew that she should be indignant, and she made a proper effort to appear so; but she did not convince even Vincent, much less herself. He calmly ignored her words, and went on:

"Irene, I have always wanted to talk honestly with you, but, somehow, I never could down there." He pointed his finger at the earth below. "But since I have lived up here I have seen that you have been in the wrong."

"Indeed!" she cried, with real indignation now.

"Yes; you were wrong. I am not a mere trifler and idler. Up here that has become plain to me. My music now means more to me. I have thought of real music—"

"Oh, yes," she interrupted. "I have read in the newspapers that you were probably studying effects for a new symphony of the elements—winds and storms, you know."

He flushed, but went on steadily:

"And I have discovered the value of ridicule up here. Never again shall I let it deter me from doing what I want to do. I think that if I am granted the power to write good music it will bring happiness to people down there"—again the downward gesture—"even as you try to bring them happiness. We all cannot work in the same way."

"That is true," she said, gravely. "I beg your pardon for my flippancy."

"Don't speak of it, Irene," he said, quickly. "But let me tell you this, too: I have also discovered up here that you mean more to me than you ever did. I cannot give you up without a struggle—without trying to come to an understanding with you. Is it too late, Irene?"

"Oh, I do not know—I do not know!" she cried. "Indeed, I do not, cannot, think of you as I used to, Allan. This day has changed all that. But I cannot answer now—I am troubled and anxious. Don't you see that I cannot answer now? I am not the same person I was below there. I am like a person changed, bewitched, almost intoxicated. What I might say now I might regret—below."

"Irene, Irene! You have said enough, for now, dear, I am content to wait—to let you see if the earth can again put its veil between us. Let us go down!"

He opened a valve, and the earth immediately came nearer. Awed, trembling a little in the stress of her emotions, Irene watched houses and fields and woods grow bigger.

"We are going too fast," said Vincent, throwing out some sand.

But he had delayed too long, and the balloon continued its rapid descent. The chimney of a high house seemed to thrust at them as with a spear, and the balloon narrowly escaped. Then the car banged against a tree-top.

Vincent had dropped out the anchor-rope, and some men in a garden grasped it. But there were houses all about; to descend would be dangerous, and Vincent shouted to them to let go their hold, and then he threw out a large quantity of sand. Once more the Explorer shot up into the air.

Vincent looked at Irene.

"Were you frightened?"

"Yes—a little," she said; "but you seemed able to do things, so I did not worry much."

Vincent turned his head aside to hide his happy face. She had paid homage to his strength! Good are the gifts of the air! he thought.

But his anxiety soon returned. The balloon was acting more erratically to-day than ever before in his experience, but from what cause he did not know. And the weather worried him. They were in a thick cloud-bank that contracted the gas, and were again falling. He threw out more sand, hoping that the wind would soon blow him through the cloud, or blow the cloud away. It did neither. In fact, it failed altogether, and the cloud changed to a thick fog, only to be described by one word—nothingness. Vacancy, deadness, silence, no light, no movement—nothingness.

So they drifted for hours. When, at last, the fog did clear partially, Vincent's heart contracted and then furiously throbbed as he saw below him the menace and the horror of the explorers of the air—the sea! They had got out of the west wind, been blown back over the land they had crossed, and out to sea.

"Oh, the ocean, the ocean!" cried Irene, clapping her hands. "What a glorious sight it is from here."

She did not know the danger which appalled Allan Vincent. The gas in his balloon, which was not a large one, could not possibly last more than twenty hours longer. If the wind did not change, if they sank down to that plain of waters, its cold touch would mean—death.

He tried to keep his emotions from registering themselves in his face. He might have deceived a man, but Irene read a disquieting message in his tense, set features.

"What is the matter? You must tell me, Allan," she said.

For a moment he was silent. "You must tell me," she repeated. "You said there was truth up here, and I am not a child."

And he told her. "Yes, there is danger," he concluded, "but the wind may change."

"If not?"

"Then we must trust that we can manage to make a descent near some vessel."

"That would be our only hope?"

"I am afraid so, Irene!" he suddenly cried. "To think that my foolish act has brought you into this!"

"Hush," she said. "Do not speak like that again. The wind will change or we shall see a ship. There is none in sight now, save that one far off there, do you see it? Allan, what a grandeur there is in the sunset!"

"Stormy grandeur," he replied, "but it is splendid."

The sun was sinking in a smoky, crimson glory. And the night was behind it, night and all its terrors. If a descent were made imperative by the gas evaporating, there would be no hope for them in the darkness, as Vincent well knew.

The sun set. The sky clouded. Night soon came. The wind was not strong now, but it blew steadily seaward, and they went with it. No chance offered while the light lasted to descend near any ship, and, as the blackness shut in around them, Allan heaped all his rugs and coats around and about Irene, and said:

"Your courage has not left you?"

"No," she answered, peering through the gathering darkness at his face.

At intervals Irene slept, only to awaken with a start. Now and then she was on the verge of screaming, as if in the grasp of some hideous nightmare. But her eyes saw Vincent's form, wakeful and silent, and she retained her self-possession.

When she awoke for the last time it was in a faint, gray light, at dawn, and she thought for a moment that again it was raining, for water was splashing into her face. Then she cried with terror, for the basket was almost in the water, and it was spray from surging waves that drenched her. But Vincent was throwing out ballast desperately, and the balloon surged upward.

By and by the sun came out, the fog-wreaths dispersed, but they saw only the sea. But in one place the smooth surface of the water—the waves did not show from the height they were at—was dotted with a small black object.

"A steamboat!" said Allan. "Irene, we must try to descend near it. I dare not keep on. Our ballast is nearly all gone—the gas cannot last much longer. The wind favors us now. Irene, dear girl, nerve yourself!"

And he opened a valve to let out the gas.

The sea leaped nearer; the descent was begun. They were drifting rapidly toward the ship, letting go gas as they traveled, and sinking down on a long, inclined plane, as a gull slants down a current of wind.

"But we may fall into the water far from the ship, Allan?"

"There is that danger, yes," he said.

For a moment there was silence.

"Allan," said the girl, "kiss me!"

With a cry he bent to her and folded her in the circle of his arms.

"I love you, dear," she whispered. "I think that I have always loved you, but I did not know it until now. If we—if we go—we go together, dear!"

He pressed his lips to hers, and then put away her arms and turned again to his work.

He dropped out the anchor at the end of two hundred feet of rope, and tried with all his skill, and all his will, to bring the Explorer into the water at the very side of the ship. He shouted to attract the attention of those on the vessel. It was a yacht, he saw, and quite a large one. There were men moving about on the deck, and the appearance of the vessel struck him as oddly familiar.

As the Explorer dropped near the water on the far side of the yacht, the men on board, roused at last by his cries, grasped the trailing grapnel rope and pulled the car of the balloon through the water back toward the side of the vessel. Excited orders were bawled. The engines were stopped, and boats lowered.

With Irene in his arms, Vincent hurled the wraps and incumbering rugs away and leaped into the water.

"Right-O! We have you, governor!" shouted a frantic sailor in one of the boats; and the next moment Vincent and Irene were dragged aboard. Three minutes later they were on the deck of the Rover, the yacht in which the philosopher, Gregory Baldwin, wandered, "the world for to see."

For once in his life, his philosophy failed him as he recognized the rescued voyagers of the air, brought to him on the wings of the morning. He gasped and floundered in the amazement of common souls. But perhaps philosophy came to his aid when, a little later, he learned how matters stood between Vincent and Irene.

COL. JONES IS IN TOWN.

Directors of Traction Company Hold Meeting Here Today.

Col. J. L. Jones, of Philadelphia, arrived in Fort Wayne this morning and was present at a meeting of the board of directors of the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction company, held this morning at the offices in the terminal building on West Main street. Mr. Jones will depart for his home late this afternoon.

General Manager Sam W. Greenland stated that nothing but routine business came before the meeting. Track improvements and other line and power plant work done during the summer was approved by the board.

The traction company is planning to improve car service in Fort Wayne during the winter by pressing extra cars into daily operation. The plans have not yet been completed, but an extra car is now in operation each evening during the rush hours on Spy Run avenue. The company, it is said, is also planning to inaugurate a shorter schedule on the South Wayne line.

SCHOOL READY IN JANUARY.

Rapid progress is being made in the completion of the new Rudisill school on Spy Run avenue, and according to Contractor Henry Hilgeman, the building will be ready for occupancy not later than the first of the coming year. The building has been under course of construction for two years. The work was delayed last year owing to lack of material and sewer connections.

No matter what ails your child a laxative should be the first treatment given.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, it is a sure sign your "little one's" stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once. When cross, peevish, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally; if breath is bad, stomach sour, system full of cold, throat sore, or if feverish, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs" and in just a few hours all the clogged-up, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food will gently move out of the bowels and you have a well, playful child again.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless fruit laxative. Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure. They also know a little given today saves a sick child tomorrow.

Ask your druggist for a 50 cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.—Adv.

IN "EVERYWOMAN."

THAIS MAGRANE,

Majestic Tonight, Wednesday Matinee and Wednesday Night.

Many plays of many kinds have won success, but it is doubtful whether there has ever been another produced more subtly significant, more deeply impressive, or more wonderful in its appeal to senses than the dramatic spectacle, "Everywoman," which Henry W. Savage is offering at the Majestic again tonight and tomorrow matinee and night.

The play is symbolic, dramatic. It is an allegory; it is poetry; it is the story as old as the world of living, breathing men and women, and it is the story that is as new and fresh as youth and beauty must always be. It is the story of every woman seeking love and finding it only after devious wanderings and long suffering, trials and heartaches. Every woman in the play is not called Ruth or Mary or Frances but Everywoman, and it is by this designation she is known throughout the five acts. It is an abstract name which may be fitted into concrete form by each beholder, for "Everywoman" is a chapter from every woman's life.

Everywoman seeks love as the greatest treasure life possesses, and she leaves her home in her youth and blossoming beauty and goes out into the by-ways of the world as many another woman has done. She seeks love through Passion, through Wealth, through Society, but finds in each case only a shoddy pretense, an alloy which mocks her first pure purpose and when her soul is bruised upon the rocks of solid, ugly facts she is led back by Truth, homely old Truth, whom in her youth she had despised and shrunk from. Every character in the play is symbolic of some abstract virtue or vice or condition, each carefully worked out in connection with its relation to the life of woman. It is declared to be the shrewdest analysis of human nature ever presented upon the stage, and combined with wonderful pictorial embellishments drives its lesson home with telling force.

BLUE-JACKETS ROBBED,

Musician Absconds With Cash Given to Arrange Visit to Pope.

Rome, Nov. 11.—The blue-jackets of the American battleships Utah, Delaware, Vermont and Ohio, discovered today that they had been robbed of $12,000 which they entrusted to the care of a musician named Camerazzo, a former bandsman on the Utah. He was to have used the money for the purpose of arranging an excursion to Rome and an audience with the pope. Camerazzo was recommended to the sailors by Chaplain William H. Ireany, of the Utah, who is now in Rome. About 1,000 blue-jackets who wished to pay a visit to Rome handed over their money to Camerazzo, with instructions to engage a special train for them. This he promised to do, but when the men obtained shore leave and were ready to start, they found that Camerazzo had baconded with the cash.

AGAIN USE BOMB AND TORCH.

Militant Suffragettes Make New Attacks in British Isles.

London, Nov. 11.—Militant suffragette arson squads and bomb troops were at work in several parts of the British Isles early today.

The Cactus house at Alexandra park, Manchester, containing a collection valued at $50,000, was wrecked by a bomb. Begbrook, a fine mansion near Bristol, was badly damaged by fire. The bowling and tennis club's house at Catford, southeast of London, was burned down.

On the scene of all outrages, suffragette literature and petroleum cans were found, but no clue to the identity of the criminals.

ASKS JOB AS HEIR TO MILLION.

Novel Plea Made to St. Louis Mayor by a Correspondent.

St. Louis, Nov. 11.—Mayor Kiel has one of the hardest jobs of his career before him. He received a letter signed Nobie Warrington, in which the writer applies for the job of being son and heir to a millionaire, or, at least a wealthy couple. He stated that he was a well-read man, association with whom would help almost anybody. Mayor Kiel immediately ordered a search of his records of millionaires who have applied for heirs for adoption.

There are many imitation baking powders, made from cheap ingredients. They may cost little per pound, but their use may be at the cost of health.

ITS GOING TO BE WARM ONCE MORE

Weather Man Says a Rise in Temperature is Due Shortly.

WENT TO 23 DEGREES

Walter S. Palmer, forecaster at the Fort Wayne station of the government weather bureau, declares that warmer weather is headed for this part of Indiana and a rise in temperature is looked for within the next twenty-four hours. In fact, it is said the premature winter weather that held Fort Wayne in its icy grasp for two days, has been broken up, at least for the present. During the last two days about one and three-fourths inches of snow was reported in Fort Wayne. Early this morning the government thermometer registered 23 degrees.

Two Years Ago.

Two years ago today the weather was warm and summery, so to speak, with the temperature ranging high and outside workers were uncomfortable with their coats. Two years ago tomorrow, however, Fort Wayne experienced a touch of winter weather very much like that of the last two days. In fact the records at the weather station show a greater drop in temperature than was experienced here Sunday.

Mr. Palmer states that he is now issuing 300 weather cards daily to patrons in Fort Wayne and vicinity.

FIRE AT TIPPECANOE.

Warsaw, Ind., Nov. 11.—The village of Tippecanoe, thirteen miles southwest of here, was visited by fire Monday, and for a while the entire village was threatened. The building in which the Rhoades shoeshop was located was burned to the ground, and also the residence of Quinley M. Cramm, proprietor of the village livery barn. For a time the latter place was threatened by the flames, and the horses were quickly gotten out together with buggies and other vehicles. The Mentone hook and ladder company were called when the seriousness of the fire was realized and responded to the call in a comparatively short time. They tore down several small buildings in the rear of the residence and livery barn, so as to prevent the flames from doing further damage. All the household goods in the Cramm residence were saved.

HOSPITAL ENJOYS LARGE PATRONAGE

Reports Show Lutheran Institution in Prosperous Condition.

NURSES' NEW HOME

At the semi-annual meeting of the administration board of the Fort Wayne Lutheran hospital Monday afternoon, Rev. Ph. Wambsganss read a report referring to the large patronage of patients and the noteworthy achievements during the past six months. The report showed that 1012 patients were received into the institution, making a total of 15,632 nursing days and an average of 85 patients a day. There were 68 patients in the hospital at the last meeting of the board and of the 862 which were newly received, 305 were males and 557 females. The report also showed that there were 82 births.

The treasurer's report showed a total receipt of $26,149.68 and a total expense of $22,157.90, leaving a surplus of $3,991.66. Deducting from this $840.42 for interest leaves a net gain of $3,151.36.

The trustees reported that the purchase of the Judge Alden homestead has been brought to a close and that the nurses have already moved to their new quarters and that the rooms which have been vacated by the nurses will be fitted up for hospital purposes.

There are 56 nurses employed at the institution, enough to have all special nursing done by nurses of the training school and not by registered nurses as heretofore.

A special vote of thanks was given to the Ladies' Aid society of the hospital for their material assistance. It was also announced that this active society would hold a sale at the Emmaus hall next Friday afternoon, November 14.

Rev. Ph. Wambsganss intends to give an illustrated lecture during Thanksgiving week on "Charity Work Carried on by the Lutheran Synodical Conference" at the various Lutheran church halls. The proceeds of these lectures will go towards furnishing the nurses' home.

TURN FIRE-FIGHTERS.

Dummer Academy Football Players Prevent Spread of Blaze.

South Byefield, Mass., Nov. 11.—The members of the football squad at Dummer academy turned fire fighters early today and prevented a fire which started in the Commons from spreading to other buildings of the educational plant. The football men, who were quartered in the Commons, were aroused by the crackling of flames. They made their way out, through the smoke-filled halls to safety, then formed a fire brigade, directed by a series of sharp signals, from their quarter-back. With buckets and small hose they worked to such good effect that by the time the regular fire apparatus arrived the flames were under control. The loss was small.

Mrs. Manager—"Come in, Anty Drudge, and don't look so shocked. I'm not using this boiler for my washing, but after I got done today I had plenty of time, so I thought I'd dye this dress of Mary's that got so faded before I started to use Fels-Naptha Soap. So I just mixed the dye in the boiler."

Anty Drudge—"I certainly was surprised. I thought you'd gone back to the old way, and I couldn't understand it. But I guess it's Fels-Naptha Soap for you always, isn't it? I buy mine by the box."

Every woman who once uses Fels-Naptha Soap in cool or lukewarm water uses it always for all kinds of work. It is the easy-way, cool-water, no-hard-rubbing soap which cuts woman's work in two and gives her time for rest and pleasure.

Clothes washed with Fels-Naptha do not have to be hard-rubbed or boiled.

Better buy it by the box or carton. Easy directions are on the Red and Green Wrapper.

OFFICIALS HERE FOR COMFERENCE

Men of Nickel Plate and Lake Shore Meet the Works Board.

THE MUNICIPAL NEWS

This afternoon the board of works, Mayor Grice and City Attorney Hogan are in conference with a party of officials representing the Nickel Plate and the Lake Shore railroads on the matter of track elevation at Osage street. The problem is complex and far-reaching and the conference today is the real beginning of negotiations for another big program of track elevation, although it has specifically only to do with the separation of grades at Osage street and the two railroads.

The Nickel Plate people are bent on the protection of their yards and the city is seeking an arrangement that will not later prove an embarrassment to the elevation of tracks on the Nickel Plate east of Osage street and on through the city. The Nickel Plate, as has been frequently stated, desires the separation of grades at the junction of its own tracks with the Lake Shore tracks which are leased to the Lake Erie & Western. There is involved, too, the separation of grades at Main street and the Lake Erie, though this is only incidentally under discussion.

The railway men in the conference are E. E. Hart, chief engineer of the Nickel Plate, Cleveland; W. W. Roach, chief track elevation engineer of the Lake Shore, Chicago; M. L. Reynolds, superintendent of the Lake Shore, Hillsdale, Mich.; S. C. Murray, of the general counsel's office of the New York Central lines, Chicago; Sol K. Blair, general agent of the Nickel Plate; Judge Walter Olds, local counsel for the railways interested, Fort Wayne; Will F. Dinnen, of counsel for the Lake Shore railway, South Bend; George Potter, division engineer of the Nickel Plate, Fort Wayne, and J. B. Clizbe, local agent for the Lake Shore.

The conference promises to be a lengthy one.

STILL HOPE FOR ACTION.

Board of Works Anxious for Order in Baker Street Matter.

Notwithstanding the decision of the council committee on streets and alleys to report unfavorably on the resolution to declare the proposed widening of Baker street from Calhoun to Webster a necessity of the public welfare, the board of works still hopes there may be found a way to procure a minority report so that the matter may be thrashed out and voted upon in the meeting of the council tonight. At a meeting of the committee last night Messrs. Haller, Welch and Felger decided to report unanimous disapproval of the ordinance. It is believed by the board that the widening of the street from twenty-eight to forty feet between curbs will have to be accomplished sooner or later and that it should on all accounts be done now. The Pennsylvania railroad is holding up its sidewalk construction on the south side of the street until the matter is settled so that it will know where to build. The argument is that the improvement will cost no property owner heavily, that it will greatly increase the value of abutting property and that the forthcoming increase of traffic by reason of the opening of Harrison street under the tracks and the use of the new Pennsylvania station makes the broader street a public necessity. If a minority report can be secured the council will have a chance to determine the issue.

DIPHTHERIA TAKES A SPURT.

Several New Cases Add to the Perils of the Situation.

Four new cases of diphtheria reported to the city health department today have disapated the hope of the health authorities that the scourge was abating. There are now 33 cases in 27 families, bringing the number back to the stage of greatest danger during last month. Scarlet fever has abated much and it is believed the worst is past in respect of that malady. Dr. Eric A. Crull, secretary of the board of health, stated today that while the situation is bad it is not beyond control and that he hopes with thorough co-operation of physicians, teachers and parents to prevent the development of an epidemic. He stated that he did not regard the situation as yet counseling closing of the schools, but said such steps would be taken at any time it appeared necessary. New cases reported are:

In the Harmeyer home, 1801 Gay street; in the Pattie home, 1001 Pape avenue; in the Heidenreich home, 1842 Weisser Park avenue; Mrs. Hanna Gross, aged 45, 303 West Williams street.

CONDEMN PROPERTY AT JOG.

Board of Works in First Step to Improve Broadway and Taylor.

The board of works has passed a resolution to condemn a triangular piece of ground at the southeast corner of Broadway and Taylor street in order to abate the dangers of the sharp jog in Broadway at that point and the assessment rolls are now being prepared. The assessments will affect property from the Pennsylvania tracks to the first alley south of Huestis avenue. August Riedmiller owns the property needed and a piece fronting 18½ feet on Broadway and 13½ feet on Taylor street is condemned by the resolution. Negotiations with the owner will be taken up and the board will doubtless seek expert advice as to the value. The improvement will greatly modify the dangers at one of the worst street intersections in the city.

ORDINANCE MUCH MODIFIED.

The wiring and meter ordinance prepared at the instance of the city lighting department has been greatly changed by the committee on rules, regulations and ordinances. Meeting with the committee were George Smith, general manager of the municipal lighting department, and D. Myers, of the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction company's lighting department. The measure has been made to conform to the city building code. The ordinance will be reported tonight.

MORE PAY FOR CITY SEALER.

An ordinance increasing the salary of the city sealer from $1,200 to $1,500 will go to the city council tonight. There is an appropriation of $1,600 for the office next year and Sealer C. B. Tolan says $100 will be ample to meet expenses.

BUILDING PERMITS.

Christian Doenges, 1311 Fletcher avenue, 2-story frame dwelling, $2,500.

FINAL ESTIMATE FOR SIDEWALK.

At tomorrow's meeting of the park board the final estimate for the sidewalk on both sides of Rudisill boulevard from Hanna street to the first alley west of Thomas street will be presented for confirmation. The estimate is $7,543.26.

LAX PARENTAL RULE CAUSE OF WHITE SLAVERY, SAYS REFORMER.

MRS. J. S. A. MACDONALD.

San Francisco, Nov. 11.—"What American cities need most is more care for young girls," says Mrs. J. S. A. Macdonald, one of the most eminent club women of the west. "Better care of home girls. Look at the high school girls who run in little cliques whose mothers know little of their associates, plans, interests.

"The way young girls are allowed to go to theaters un-chaperoned is terrible. Mothers are too indifferent. There is constant danger for even the best girl. She is too young to decide things impersonally or wisely.

"Mothers do not enter into the interests and desires of their daughters sufficiently. The mother should gain her daughter's confidence. A cross word, or worse yet, ridicule, when sympathy or toleration is needed, has frequently broken the daughter's faith in her mother and made it impossible for the parent to ever gain that confidence again.

"Don't allow little girls of 8 and 10 to go alone to nickelodeons or in groups.

"Let parental training begin when the girls are young; before they get 'ideas.'

"If mothers would only awaken to the fact that they must not give their daughters so much freedom nor demand so little confidence, white slaving would not be such a thriving little business."

KERN SUMMONS TO CONFERENCE

Democratic Senator Will Discuss the Currency Measure.

CAUCUS? NOT QUITE

Washington, Nov. 11.—Senator Kern, chairman of the democratic caucus, has issued a formal call for a conference of democratic senators on the currency bill tomorrow afternoon. The call makes no mention of a caucus, but says the purpose is to discuss currency legislation.

Henry M. Pindell, of Peoria, Ill., selected for ambassador to Russia, Secretary Bryan and Samuel M. Graham, assistant attorney general, went into conference with President Wilson early today concerning the publication of a letter purporting to have been written by Senator Lewis, of Illinois, to Mr. Pindell, offering the latter the St. Petersburg post on condition that he resign at the end of one year.

President Wilson has indicated he will investigate all the circumstances connected with the letter and the summoning of Mr. Graham was taken as an indication that the department of justice might look into the affair. Intimations have come from Mr. Pindell that the letter was a forgery.

The Russian government had already notified the state department Mr. Pindell would be persona grata.

"I Saw the Flying Dutchman!" Says Eddie Montgomery, Young Seaman's Apprentice

Tells How, as He Hung to the Halliards, Great Phantom Ship Rushed Down Upon the "Annie Reed" as She Skirted Far Off Semaphore Bay.

(By W. H. Alburn.)

Brooklyn, N. Y., Nov. 8.—Edward Montgomery, seaman's apprentice, aged 18, sat one a coil of rope, with a marlinspike in his belt, gulping stumgullion from a big dinner plate.

It was high noon, on the sunny deck of the square-rigged Annie M. Reid, where she lay tied to the Erie basin breakwater, among tugs, lighters, sailing craft and steamers from the seven seas.

"Any adventures this voyage?" I asked.

"Ad-ven-tures? Well, I should rawther—"

The frank-faced English lad grew suddenly furtive. "Follow me!" he whispered mysteriously. "Hist! The captain might warm my hide with a tarred rope-end if he glimpsed me talkin' to a reporter."

I histed, and followed him into the forecastle, as the wedding guest followed the Ancient Mariner.

"I've—seen—it!" he gasped, as we seated ourselves on his bunk.

"Seen what?"

"Why, the Flying Dutchman. Only, she's not like the old one you read about, that sends past at night with sails set and spray flying and not a soul aboard.

"She's a steamship, wth two funnels, bearin' down on you in the murk of a storm, an' she'd plow right through you—or you'd plow through her—tell me, mister, is my hair turned white?"

Being assured his locks were still as carrot as the side-dish, Edward continued:

"Ever since I ran away from Hull, eighteen months ago, an' shipped on the Annie, I'd been lookin' for the Dutchman. But nothing happened.

"We sailed to Australia, makin' the 10,000 miles from Montevidio to Adelaide in thirty-eight days, roarin' past the Cape o' Good Hope at fifteen knots, with the port rail under water an' all sails drawin', an' no seaman able to walk the deck. Oh, she's speedy, is the Annie M. Reid, with nineteen world's records from port to port.

"We left Australia, bound for London an' New York, stopping at Kangaroo Island an' loadin' wheat at Semaphore bay, an' then crossed the line, an' were skirtin' the Western islands when one afternoon, the sky bein' clear, all at once a squall came on an' it grew dark.

"Wilfred Denne an' me an' Will Langley, all 'prentices, were standin' by the mizzentop halliards when 'the shackle broke in the tie, an' down crashed the mizzentop's yard.

"Then, huddenly, while we hung to the halliards, with the deck reelin' an' the spray flyin' over, we sight a ship comin' right end-down for us, on our starboard bow.

EDDIE MONTGOMERY AND THE ANNIE M. REID, OF GLASGOW, ON WHICH HE MET THE "FLYING DUTCHMAN," PHANTOM SHIP.

"We were goin' full an' by, you understand, under full sail, with a head wind. An' on comes that tramp steamer right end-down, as I said, with never a light set, an' never a signal, though her skylight was wide open an' out of it streamed a flood o' queer light—sort o' greenish yellow!

"Our lookout had given the alarm, an' the helmsman put the wheel up a little, an' our ship came into the wind as close as she dared, an' the skipper was runnin' up an' down on the fo'c'sle head burnin' blue lights to warn her. An' still she came on, never veerin' a point!

"That wild ship passed us so close I could a tossed a biscuit over her rail. An' nobody on the lookout—not a livin' soul on deck or bridge—only that greenish-yellow glare from her skylights, an' grenish-yellow smoke pourin' out o' her funnels.

"An'—believe me or not, mister—there was a red bar o' light low down among the black clouds in the west, where the sun was settin', an' I saw that bar o' red light right through the ship!

"She'd no sooner passed than the squall went away, the sky cleared an' the sea died down.

"Next day we caught a seven-foot shark an' nailed the tail to our jibboom, an' that brought us fair breezes."

TABBY RESCUED BY FIREMEN.

Was on Brown Memorial Steeple and Wouldn't Come Down.

Baltimore, Nov. 11.—"Sally," a large tabby cat, who had been marooned on the steeple of Brown Memorial Presbyterian church, Lafayette and Park avenues, since the morning before, defied the efforts of the laddermen of No. 11 truck company for more than two hours the other day before she was restored to terra firma.

The animal, which is owned by Mrs. Kate S. Craig, 1402 Park avenue, ran up the Virginia creeper which covers the steeple in pursuit of a sparrow. "Sally" owes her rescue to the Rev. Dr. J. Ross Stevenson, the pastor of the church, who appealed to Fire Chief Emrich.

DON'T STARE AT POLICEMAN.

It's Bad Luck if You Happen to Be in Germany.

Breslau, Germany, Nov. 11.—Sentence of a fortnight in prison for staring at a policeman was imposed on a business man of this city today. In his defense the defendant said he believed the policeman was observing him too conspicuously, so he stared back. The court in pronouncing judgment said the defendant had been guilty of "a most serious insult to an official."

NATION-WIDE PROHIBITION.

Anti-Saloon League Speakers Favor Amending Constitution.

Columbus, O., Nov. 11.—Nation-wide prohibition to be accomplished through the means of an amendment to the federal constitution was the keynote sounded in addresses of several speakers at the afternoon session today of the national convention of the Anti-Saloon League and allied bodies that are meeting in this city.

Several thousand persons who crowded Memorial hall stood up and cheered as the speakers gave pronouncement to the demand that the abolition of the liquor traffic within the confines of the country be put up squarely to congress at once.

Evolution of the Motion Picture

Power, Inventor of the Cameragraph, Tells the Story of Its Progression.

Buffalo Bill to Live His Adventurous Life Again in Essanay Films.—Wounded Knee, Little Big Horn and Other Famous Indian Fights to Be Pictured On the Screens.

To many who attend motion pictures (and who does not), there is much curiosity as to how they are accomplished. It is not enough to know that they are projected from the compartment known as the operator's booth. They want to "see the wheels go 'round."

Mr. Nicholas Power, the recognized authority on the subject, and a pioneer in the industry, believing that an insight into the details of the business would interest the layman, has this to say:

"Motion picture machines were first patented in 1857. They consisted of objects which, revolving rapidly, simulated motion. They were of little worth.

"In 1860 there was patented an optical instrument comprising a disk or moving shutter movement, which, on revolving, projected objects with the appearance of motion. There were then no films, and translucent glass was used. This was the forerunner of modern machines.

"A bet was made in 1871 by the late Senator Leland Stanford, of California, that a running horse at no time had all four feet off the ground. Edward Muybridge, an Englishman, by way of experiment, placed numerous cameras at intervals about the track, which were snapped by the horse in passing. It proved that the horse always had, when running, one foot on the ground.

"In 1880 Muybridge produced in San Francisco, the Zoopraxicope, which produced pictures on glass positives on a screen. Later he sought to combine his machine with the Edison Phonograph, then in its infancy.

"Mr. Marey, of the Institute of France, was the first to utilize the continuous film, which was then in a very crude state.

"In 1893 Lumiere produced the 'Cinematograph,' the first machine to project (throw on screen) pictures from a film. Films then had only one hole on each side of each picture. Edison increased this to four on each side and in 1896 produced his Vitascope. These machines became the models for the greatly improved article of to-day.

"The improvement since then has been pronounced. My first machine was called the 'Peerlescope.' I kept continually improving it and in 1902 changed the name to 'Cameragraph,' which is known throughout the world.

"This is a very brief review of the evolutionary stages of the motion picture machine, eliminating many of the details. In the near future I shall trace its development through other stages."

Buffalo Bill will again figure as scout and plainsman; again fight in the battles of former days—live his whole adventurous life over again—for the Essanay Film Manufacturing Company, of Chicago. Arrangements have been made to this purpose on an extensive scale by George K. Spoor, President of the Company, and one of the biggest feature productions ever brought out in this country is promised.

As buffalo hunter, as pathfinder and trail blazer, as Indian scout and as a fighter in the battles of Wounded Knee, the Little Big Horn and other historic engagements in the bloody Indian wars of former days, William F. Cody will reenact for the screens, the deeds that won him fame and the sobriquet of "Buffalo Bill." And as supporting members in the scenes in which he will appear as star will be some 5,000 Indians, 3,000 soldiers, and an equipment of canaons, firearms of all kinds, horses, mules, and Indian ponies, and all will be assembled on the exact spots where the original engagements took place.

The films are designed not only to be of interest from the standpoint of the thriller, but of value as an educator both to young and old. The Essanay Company is determined to maintain its place among the leaders in educational lines.

The pictures will be directed and produced by Theodore W. Wharton, one of Essanay's most capable managers. One hundred thousand dollars is represented in the investment.

The pictures will be in six acts, which will comprise 10,000 feet of film. They will be booked by the Col. Wm. F. Cody (Buffalo Bill) Historical Pictures Company, and will be shown in the largest theatres on this and the European continent. They will not be handled as a State Rights proposition.

President Spoor is taking more personal interest in the proposed Buffalo Bill views than in any series ever undertaken by his company.

Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, has returned to New York enthusiastic in his satisfaction with his first trip to his company's plant at Los Angeles, Cal.

"Well, I think that now we have the greatest producing plant in the world," said Mr. Laemmle when questioned as to his trip. "Note that little word 'now.' It wasn't always the best, I know. I can remember when the reports that reached me were not so very encouraging. But now it has been put in shape by J. C. Graham and Isidor Bernstein, the general manager on the Coast.

"I found a remarkable esprit de corps. Every one likes Mr. Bernstein and is working twice as hard for him as before. The plant is clean and nice and large and affords remarkable facilities for producing films. It is turning out from sixteen to twenty reels a week right now. It surprised me—it really did. It far surpassed what I had expected of it."

THE WEIRD FASCINATION OF THE VAMPIRE DANCE REACTS TO SAVE A WRECK

Caught in the Toils of an Adventuress, the Victim Sees in the Terpsichorean Act An Allegorical Picture of His Own Fate

"The Vampire" (Kalem).—Bert French and Miss Alice Eis, two of the world's greatest dancers, are featured in the superb Kalem three-part production, "The Vampire."

The story is woven about the "Vampire Dance," which has been performed with tremendous success by Mr. French and Miss Eis, both here and abroad. As shown in this unusual Kalem feature, these wonderful dancers reach the topmost pinnacle of terpsichorean art.

"The Vampire Dance" is a remarkable exhibition of grace and is utterly unlike any of the dances shown on the stage at the present time. It fascinates and thrills.

According to the story of "The Vampire," the dance is the means whereby a country boy who has lost everything worth while in life because of an adventuress, is redeemed. A drunkard and an outcast, he has decided to become a food-pad when, by chance, he goes to a show in which Bert French and Alice Eis are billed to appear. The performance affects him so greatly that he determines to regain his place among men. How he succeeds is told in the following:

Harold tires of the farm and determines to go to the city. He tells his sweetheart, Helen, of his plans. She finally consents to wait for him until he sends for her. Harold secures a position with a large commission house. His ability and industry makes him a favorite with his employer. Six months later, Harold receives a large commission on a sale he has brought about. He decides to celebrate, and when Neville, a clerk in the office, suggests that they go to one of the fashionable restaurants that evening, Harold readily agrees. In the restaurant Harold sees Sybil, an adventuress at a nearby table and becomes fascinated. Sybil finds an opportunity to join Harold at his table, and the boy is soon in her coils. In his fascination for the adventuress, Harold forgets his country sweetheart, and the adventuress leads him on until he is deep in a career of dissipation. He loses his employment, is without a dollar, is then cast off by Sybil, and before long he is a drunkard and an outcast.

Knowing that it is impossible to get money honestly, Harold pawns his one remaining possession of former prosperity—a watch which contains his mother's picture. With part of the proceeds he purchases a revolver. He has determined to hold up some one returning from the theatre that night. He has several hours to wait. To pass away the time, he decides to witness a performance at one of the music halls. He enters just as the curtain rises upon the playlet in which Bert French and Alice Eis appear in their world-famous "Vampire Dance."

Harold sees a beautiful woodland scene. An artist appears. Enchanted with the beauty of the spot, he sets his easel and canvas and commences painting. As he paints, a wood-nymph is seen crawling from out the tangled undergrowth. The artist sees her approaching and draws back in repulsion. The beauty of the creature is so great, however, that he finds himself irresistably drawn towards her. The creature, at once so beautiful and so terrible, springs upright and then commences the dance which enmeshes the artist in her coils. The victim frantically struggles to escape, but his efforts are in vain. As Harold witnesses the artist's attempts to free himself from the vampire's deadly spell, he fancies that he is viewing his life with Sybil. In his frenzy to escape, the painter beats the vampire with his clenched fists. He hurls her away, but the creature invariably comes back into his arms. Little by little she lures him towards a little dell. There, overcome, the artist falls in a swoon. With a leap of triumph the vampire is upon her victim and encompasses his death.

Harold sees himself in the place of the artist, the latter's death his own end. Rushing from the theatre, he returns to the miserable room which has been his home and falls upon the bed. When he rises once more his eyes are red with the tears caused by the struggle that has gone on within him. But he has won, and vows to take his place among men once more. He begs his former employer for his old position and secures it.

Returning home he bumps into a girl carrying several large hat boxes. It is Helen. The lovers greet each other delightedly. Harold then proposes an immediate marriage. Helen consents, and within an hour a minister has been found, witnesses secured, and the knot is tied.

A Belasco Staging Picture Plays

A Brother of the Famous David Won to Service of the Screen.

Manager Ince Believes He Has Found the Germ of Genius in His New Recruit and is At Work On the Task of Developing It Into Active Manifestation.

On a recent visit to San Francisco, Mr. Thos. H. Ince, general manager of the New York Motion Picture Corporation, secured a valuable acquisition to the Motion Picture stage. Through a flattering offer he has succeeded in luring from the fold of the legitimate, the clever character actor, Walter Belasco.

Manager Ince believes that directors are born and not made. Confidence in this belief emanates from the fact that the quality of temperament which has made him a foremost director of moving pictures is an inheritance, as his parents were well known in their day as performers of unquestionable merit. Mr. Ince, it will be remembered, recently staged that wonderful, five-reel feature, "The Battle of Gettysburg." Having faith in this theory, Mr. Ince insists he will find lurking somewhere in the person of Mr. Belasco that latent germ of the born director that has made his brother David the recognized peer of all directors of the legitimate drama in America.

If this germ can be found and applied, says Manager Ince, in a very short while what David Belasco is to the legitimate stage his brother Walter will be to the silent drama. It will be interesting to watch the result of this experiment. Walter Belasco is now working diligently in the ranks of the Kay-Bee and Broncho.

Watterson R. Rothacker has made a specialty of producing motion pictures illustrating details of the various industries, and has won country-wide attention for the excellence of the work he has produced. He has just brought out a series of pictures illustrating the production of pure foods. These pictures, accompanied by an explanatory lecture, are now being shown and are awaking great interest.

"THE PARSON" TRAILED TO HIS MOUNTAIN DEN BY THE RELENTLESS RANGER

Lillie Langtry Enacts the Role of a Devoted and Forgiving Wife.—Sandy and Shorty Fall Victims to An Old Maid's Wiles.

"The Counterfeiters' Fate" (Lubin).—Dick Blank, a mountain ranger, is instructed by his chief to go into the mountains to look for counterfeiters. Arriving at the lonely peak called Mt. Oro, he comes in contact with Mary Meadows, a mountain maid. He also meets a notorious character called "The Parson," so named on account of his peculiar and eccentric dress. He, in reality, is the leader of the counterfeiters. The ranger perceives, and after leaving a note for the mountain lass, he departs on the trail of "The Parson." "The Parson" and his henchmen capture him, and an insane hunchback attempts to blow him up with powder, but the mountain maid, who is fascinated by the good-natured stranger, arrives in time to save him. The bad men pay the penalty, and Blank and the mountain maid after a short courtship get married.

In "His Neighbor's Wife," the Famous Players Film Company will feature Lillie Langtry, the international beauty of a generation ago.

The period of the action of "His Neighbor's Wife," is contained in a few hours. An army captain leaves his wife and goes to visit Mrs. Norton, the wife of his next-door neighbor. Mr. Norton, returning home unexpectedly, discovers the two. He informs the wife of Captain Roberts of what he has seen, and compels her to come with him so that she, too, may be an eye-witness of the clandestine meeting. Norton tells Mrs. Roberts that unless she consents to elope with him, he will kill the captain on sight. He gives her until 10 o'clock to decide. Just before that hour, the captain returns. His wife upbraids him. Realizing that if she does not go with Norton it will mean the shooting of the captain, who has already discovered her intention of leaving, she feigns illness. As the captain goes for a glass of water, the wife steps out on the great terrace attired in the captain's great coat and hat and smoking a cigarette. In the dim light, Norton looks at his watch. It is 10:10. He shoots at the figure. Mrs. Roberts staggers into the house just as her husband returns. She is not fatally injured; a reconciliation follows.

Mrs. Langtry in the role of Mrs. Roberts will appeal to her audiences. She depicts the injured wife with feeling and skill. Captain Peacocke looks the part of Captain Norton—a fine type. Sidney Mason, who next week will play the lead in "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford," plays Mr. Norton and gives a finished performance. Irma La Pierre has the opposite role and does good work. Little Mimi Yvonne is delightful as the child of the Norton home. The photographic effects are of the usual Famous Players quality.

"When Friendship Ceases" (Vitagraph).—Sandy and Shorty wander into the country and are set to work by an old farmer, with whose old maid daughter they proceed to fall in love. She flirts with both. Their long friendship succumbs to jealousy and they go behind the barn to fight it out. Silas, the hired man, believing that Gwendoline has forsaken him, decides to hang himself, and writes her a farewell note. She flies to rescue him, and when Sandy and Shorty come forth battered and bruised they learn that the old maid and Silas have eloped.

"The Farmer's Daughters" (Thanhouser).—A Nebraska farmer tries to solve the problem of obtaining hands by advertising that he has two pretty daughters and that he would not refuse their hands to honest, industrious, farm hands. Two college youths, trying to solve the problem of existence between terms, decide to apply for the jobs and are hired. The pretty daughters, who resent being used as lure, dress and make-up as frights, and the college boys, on seeing them, try to run away. The girls hold them prisoners. Of course all ends happily, but not until the boys have some very unpleasant experiences.

Baseball Pictures Hot Off the Bat

The Championship Games Almost Simultaneously Repeated for Theatre Patrons

The National Baseball Commission Gives Exclusive Privilege for Reproduction of the Contest On the Diamond On Which the Eyes of Every Fan Are Centered.

Through Harry M. Stevens, the National Baseball Commission have awarded the exclusive privilege to take motion pictures of the Championship Baseball Series to be played in New York and Philadelphia, commencing October 7th to the Commercial Motion Picture Company, Inc., New York, and an innovation originally inaugurated by them will be followed in this instance. Motion pictures of the games to be played in New York will be developed and printed the same day and delivered to the theatres in Greater New York time to be exhibited that same evening. Of the games to be played in Philadelphia, the films will be sent to New York by special train or by high-power motor car, developed and printed the same evening, and distributed to the theaters in Greater New York the following morning, in time to be exhibited at matinees.

This plan of procedure originated with the management of the Commercial Motion Pictures Co., and was carried into effect in the case of the funeral of the late Mayor Gaynor. Motion Pictures of the funeral were taken from the time the procession left City Hall, during the services at Trinity Church, and at the burial at the cemetery. These pictures were exhibited throughout the larger theaters in Greater New York, at 8 o'clock that evening. Mr. Roskam, manager of the picture company, states that he has received no less than thirty-two requests for bookings from subscribers for the baseball films. These films will also precede the "Giants" in their trip throughout the world, and will be exhibited in each city where they play.

The wonderful advantage to the American public, particularly to those interested in the National Sport, is that they are permitted to see in detail, through Motion Pictures, the entire Championship Series at a cost of five or ten cents, whereas as high as one hundred dollars per seat is being charged at the ball grounds, without any extra advantage. Employers, too, it is believed, will benefit in so far as they will not be overburdened with requests from clerks and office boys for leave of absence to attend funerals of grandmothers, aunts and uncles on the days of the games.

Hector J. Streyckman's importation for American motion picture audiences of the Pasquale multiple-reel feature, "The Last Days of Pompeii," is sure to create a sensation, and win admiration throughout the country. It is a special dramatization for the films of Bulwer-Lytton's classical historical romance, and faithfully visualizes that thrilling story. Full artistic justice is done to all the leading characters: Glaucus, the Roman aristocrat; Nydia, the blind girl who secretly worships him; Ione and Julia, rivals for his love, and Arbaces, the wicked priest, the villain of the drama. Supporting these and the other prominent characters are hundreds—there seem to be thousands—of soldiers, gladiators, attendants, spectators and populace generally, not to speak of the lions and other animals that figure in the arena scenes.

Action, quick, strong and thrilling, characterizes every scene, but those that stand out most strikingly are the arena scenes. In one of these is a chariot race in which the leading horses trip and fall, and the three competing chariots crash into the first with a resulting tangle of horses and men and broken vehicles. In another are seen twenty gladiators, ten on a side, engaged in mortal combats, a duel to the death between two gladiators, and the great scene where Glaucus is thrown unarmed into the arena, there to fight an enraged lion. Of course, the greatest of all scenes is the finale, the terrible eruption of Vesuvius, when doomed Pompeii and its inhabitants are buried under an ocean of burning lava.

Of "The Last Days of Pompeii," it will be said, not that it is a big feature with a big "punch," but one with an unremitting succession of "punches."

Of all the work King Baggott did while abroad with his supporting Imp Company, he regards the new feature, "Absinthe," which was just finished before he left Europe, as his masterpiece. It is from the pen of Herbert Brenon, and preaches a powerful sermon against the use of a drug that has been the active cause of half of the moral and physical degeneracy of France. Alive to the dangers that lurk in this green poison, the Government of the United States recently forbade its importation into this country. To get the proper atmosphere for this great film-drama, King dressed as an Apache and went to the actual haunts of the absinthe fiends and studied at first hand the hideous effects on the habitues.

Among recent feature importations, the film dramatization of Charles Dickens' "David Copperfield," brought to this country by Albert Blinkhorn, has already won prominent place. All the familiar personages of the story are ably characterized, and the scenes pictured are those Dickens himself described so vividly.

Chicago Market.

Chicago, Nov. 11.—Although wheat prices hardened somewhat today, the advance was afterward more than wiped out. Opening prices were unchanged to ¼c higher, and the market rose still further. The ensuing decline, however, carried quotations well under last night's level.

The close was nervous, ranging from last night's figures to ¼@⅜c up.

Government crop figures and fine weather pulled down corn. The opening, which was ¼@⅜c to ⅝c off, was the beginning of a seemingly continuous decline. Offerings throughout, however, were not heavy.

The close was steady at a loss of ¼@⅜c to ½@⅝c net.

Oats sagged with corn. Commission houses' support was barely sufficient to hold the market from a sharp break.

Unloading by packers weakened provisions. First sales were unchanged to 7½c lower and an additional setback followed.

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, Nov. 11.—The rally which began late yesterday was continued in the first trading today. The whole active list was higher, with the demand keenest for Reading and Steel. Gains of a point were made by Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Harvester and National Biscuit.

Conditions in the stock market today favored a rally. The slump of yesterday brought down price to a level which resulted in increased buying for the long account. Traders bought more confidently on account of the evident expansion recently of the short interest. The influence of the hurried retreat of the bears was felt throughout the list. The upturn was helped on by the more cheerful advices concerning the Mexican situation, the recovery in copper metal prices abroad and the refusal of the courts to enjoin New Haven's $67,000,000 bond issue. Bonds were irregular.

The market closed heavy. Speculation became listless and little resistance was offered when the bears attacked prices again. A two point decline in New Haven dissipated the confident feeling which had prevailed earlier, and a general reaction carried prices to within a fractional distance of yesterday's close.

BALKAN SYSTEM ACCOUNTS FAULTY

Alien Gentleman Tried to Figure Gain Though a Loser in Saloon.

NEWS OF THE POLICE

There was some misunderstanding if not blame on both sides of the issue so Judge Mungovan released Bernard Staformowcy, or some other patronymic to that effect, who was charged with breaching the peace and order of the city of Fort Wayne. The trouble took place in a saloon at the corner of John and Wallace streets much resorted to by gentlemen of alien birth and appeared in the main to be due to an effort to apply a Balkan system of accounts to the transaction of business affairs in America. Staformowcy tendered a quarter for five pennies and two dimes. He wasted the pennies in five wides on the slot machine and then demanded six beers for the two dimes. The proprietor couldn't discern the profit of the transaction and declined to negotiate. Staformowcy insisted and a mix-up was the consequence. Officer John Godfrey was summoned to arbitrate and placed Staformowcy under arrest. In court he claimed to have been assaulted with a chair and to have defended himself. The court was in doubt and gave all hands the benefit of it.

Other City Court Cases.

Andy Fueta sopped up his oyster stew at the Hof Brau cafe last night, but failed to take care of the other one he had and it got him into trouble. He refused to pay for his oysters and was arrested for being drunk, after having been thrown out. He was allowed to go down and settle his bill.

Tom Gorman, a stranger whose peregrinations are accomplished with one leg and two crutches, came in Saturday and contrived by last night to get drunk and was arrested. He went over for eleven days.

Harry E. Shoemaker, another floater who landed Saturday, pleaded that he was sick and that one tonic imbibation had floored him. He was given eleven days for the benefit of his health.

Judge Mungovan let Henry Figel go an indefinite continuance with the proviso that he go to his former domicile on Sherman street, get his personal belongings and trouble his family no more. He was arrested last week after having been on a long bat, mistreating his wife and getting thrashed by his son. The family wants him to stay away.

Arthur Weimer was acquitted of assault and battery on his wife, from whom he is separated, the testimony showing that the alleged assault was merely a physical struggle for possession of a case that each of them claimed.

The case against Walter Doe for assault and battery on Ella Masterson was continued until tomorrow.

JAILOR GONE; MEN ESCAPE.

Because Town Marshal Hodson of Lagro had gone to Marion Saturday night and taken the keys to the village lockup with him, the two foreigners who fled from Fort Wayne after having stabbed a man in rooms above the Turkish barber shop on Holman street escaped. They were apprehended in Lagro by one of the town trustees, but there being no way to break into the bastile the official was unable to hold them. While he went for help the men took an eastbound car and cleared out.
